ABAG seeking nuclear plants' emission check

BERKELEY — The Association of Bay Area Governments (ABAG) decided Wednesday that the issue of radioactive emissions from local nuclear facilities should be included in the master Environmental Management Plan.

ABAG's senior environmental engineer H.J. Naftzger told The Times that he does not see a problem with emissions from the Valley's nuclear facilities.

"However," Naftzger said, "We are suggesting that there should be a separate monitoring program on a once per year basis."

He explained that both the Lawrence Livermore Laboratory and General Electric's Vallecitos nuclear facility are under "self-monitoring practices which are regulated by two different federal agencies. G.E.'s Vallecitos facility follows emission monitoring practices set forth by the Nuclear Regulatory Commission while LLL operates on regulations of the Energy Research and Development Administration (ERDA).

Naftzger, who specializes in water quality control planning, pointed out that LLL's "self-monitoring program" was "super adequate" while monitoring practices at G.E.'s facility were "better than adequate for federal standards."

"Essentially it is a question of credibility," he said. "We feel that an annual check of these self-monitoring systems by an independent organization would better establish proven credibility."

Such a monitoring program could be done by the State Health Department, Naftzger indicated. "They have the facilities and personnel to handle the annual check," he said.

Plans for the independent monitor are not expected to finalized until December or January. The authority will fall under one of subplans ranging from air quality to industrial waste.

The emissions issue was brought to the attention of ABAG last month by People Against Nuclear Power who were concerned about "coolant water" they say is discharged into a creek from G.E.'s facility south of Livermore .

Drive to find transit customers

Volunteers yesterday started pinpointing on a map locations of respondents to a recent telephone survey dealing with transportation needs in the Valley.

The survey, part of a three-survey study coordinated by the Valley Transportation Committee (VTC) and Congress of Valley Agencies (COVA), was designed to help pave the way for a Valley-wide bus system.

The Valley Volunteer Bureau provided workers who made random sampling calls to approximately 600 households locally, according to Deeanna Manning, recreation superintendent for Livermore Area Recreation and Park District.

Manning is chairing the VTC study, which will also include a mail-in self identification survey for senior citizens and handicapped people. A separate general area telephone survey for AC Transit will be added to the results when consulting firm Crane and Associates of Menlo Park compile the results for VTC and COVA.

Plotting on the map is expected to give VTC members a better idea of where the people are that need transportation, said Manning.

The 15 question survy asks people if they feel there is a need for a system between Livermore, Pleasanton, Dublin and San Ramon and if they would use it.

"We also wanted to get an idea of how people felt about how other people would use transit systems," she added.

The respondents were also asked how long it had been since they rode a bus, if they would be willing to walk six city blocks to get to a bus stop and if they would wait five, 10 or 15 minutes for the vehicle.

Surveys should be compiled, and a report issued to VTC and COVA by the end of summer.

The social hour is from 6 to 7 p.m. with the barbecue to follow. Maddy is also a prospective candidate for the GOP ticket and Antunovich will seek the lieutenant governor's spot.

Reservations may be made by calling 447-5983 or 443-2053.

Demonstrate art

Members of th Livermore Art Assoc. will be demonstrating varied art techniques such as card weaving and crafts making during an outdoor event called "Fun in the Park," to be held Saturday, July 16 from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. in Carnegie Park, Livermore.

The LAA Gallery, which is located in the Carnegie Building, will be open to the public from 11:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. through the day.

Local artists and craftspeople will be giving how-to lessons in various arts and crafts during the day of "Fun in the Park," which is an annual event.

Army balks on 15-acre pumping site

LIVERMORE —A congressman's aide last night said an army colonel couldn't relinquish 15 acres at Camp Parks for construction of a sewage pump station because the army is "always preparing for World War IV."

Jim Copeland, an administrative aide to Rep. Pete Stark (D Oakland), said the army wouldn't agree to give up obviously surplus land" and still demanded 300,000 gallons per day of guaranteed capacity in the $38 million sewage pipeline to continue serving Komandorski Village, Santa Rita jail and the army base near Pleasanton.

The army requested the excess capacity in case war brought troops to the near-deserted base, Copeland reported to the Livermore Amador Valley Water Management Agency (LAVWMA) board of directors after a meeting with army representatives.

Negotiations for the sewage capacity and land transfer will continue today, while LAVWMA directors stare at a $625,000 private parcel of land as the only other apparent alternative.

In other action the LAVWMA board agreed to continue financial participation in an ongoing U.S. Geological Survey study of surface and ground water in the Valley.

Leaders in Pleasanton view growth guidelines

PLEASANTON —Some dozen city council members, planning commissioners, special committee members and city staff took their first big plunge into the city's 20-year Management Plan last night.

The planj a more than six months project by the city's growth management committee, will determine the rate and location of residential development through 1995.

The plan will go before planning commissioners for public hearings in August and should be taken up by city council by mid-September.

Essentially, the plan lays out "mandatory" requirements for future home development and a set of "incentives" which will earn developers points.

City council will allocate a given number of building permits each year. They will go to developers who meet the mandated requirements and have the most points.

Commercial and industrial development is not within the scope of the massive plan.

"The recommended program has been designed to leave several options available for regulating commerical and industrial development consistent with the recommended GMP," says the 13-page summary.

The actual plan as recommended to the planning commission is a two-inch thick indexed tome.

Given the constraints of the state's E-0 growth rate which will blanket city development, Pleasanton will grow at 2 per cent per year to a population of 48,600 by 1996.

The city must meet the E-0 criteria to qualify for state and federal funding for the cross valley "super sewer" pipeline.

Mandatory requirements entail "environmental" and "housing" concerns.

Incentive points would be awarded for energy conservation, and water conservation, noise standards, traffic circulation, design, air quality, and other environmental, fiscal and housing considerations.

The plan calls for filling in currently underdeveloped areas and maximizing the use of existing utilities.

Additionally, the committee wants the city to adopt ordinances covering energy and water conservation and noise.

The plan calls for the city to "solicit and approve Williamson Act preserve applications from willing landowners located inside and outside the Urbanization Line."

The plan should be amended to the city's general plan as its "growth management element."

It was a year ago today this youngster, 25 of her classmates and a driver were kidnaped from a Chowchilla school bus. They emerged later from a van buried beneath a Livermore rock quarry. For the story of Chowchilla, one year later, see page 17.

Quarry owner says he didn't OK cops

By TONY LEDWELL
Associated Press Writer

OAKLAND (AP) — The father of one of the defendants in the Chowchilla mass kidnap case said Thursday he never gave sheriff's deputies permission to enter his property where they collected potential evidence without a search warrant.

Frederick Nickerson Woods III said he was unaware until he heard the testimony of a private security guard that deputies had toured his Portola Valley estate while his son, Frederick Newhall Woods, 25, was being sought as a fugitive.

His son's attorney, Herbert Yanowitz, alluded to the deputies at a pretrial hearing when he asked the elder Woods, "Did you ever ask them to enter the property to throw off trespassers?"

"No," he replied.

"Did they ask if you wanted them to enter the property?" asked Yanowitz.

"No," was the answer.

Deputies from Alameda County and San Mateo County testified earlier in the week that they entered the 100-acre estate on July 21, 1976, six days after 26 Chowchilla school children and their bus driver were abducted at gunpoint.

They were buried in a van at a Livermore rock quarry owned by the Woods family but dug their way out 17 hours later.

Deputy Bernel Cervi testified he jotted down license numbers of old cars and trucks on the property as possible evidence in the case. He conceded he did not have a search warrant at the time. but said he had

Pleasanton man nabbed by FBI

A year-long undercover investigation by the FBI has led to the arrest of a Pleasanton man and four other persons in connection with allegations about kickbacks and short-weighted truck shipments.

The arrests Wednesday afternoon followed indictments handed down by the federal grand jury in San Francisco, which charges the five suspects with conspiring to receive fees from trucks making deliveries in which thefts from interstate shipments had occurred with their knowledge.

Arrested at his job at the Safeway Stores non-food warehouse in Fremont was Jerry Gerald Ferrill, 42, of 4177 Payne Road in Pleasanton.

Other suspects arrested and charged were John Silvio Amantiti, 44, of Point Richmond, Gary Neil Miller, 37, of Napa, Cooper George Miller, 38, of Richmond, and William Gerald Hutt, 37, also of Richmond.

FBI agents posing as truck drivers drove tractor-trailer rigs to Safeway warehouses with "shorted" interstate shipments and allegedly obtained "received in full" receipts in return for kickbacks, FBI spokesman Frank Peroni said.

The undercover operation had been operating more than a year when the grand jury handed down the indictments.

Special Agent in Charge, Charles McKinnon, said the arrests were "examples of the FBI's efforts to penetrate white collar and organized crime in a million dollar scheme." Losses from such a scheme would ultimately be borne by the consumer, he said.

If convicted, the suspects could face five years in prison and/or a $10,000 fine each.

Watch for hard sell on phone

PLEASANTON — The Chamber of Commerce is warning residents that telephone solicitors are using high-pressure tactics in attempts to sell magazine subscriptions.

One elderly woman told a Chamber employe that after a lengthy phone conservation concerning magazine subscriptions, the caller warned that the discussion had been recorded and that the contract made was therefore legally binding.

California law provides a three-day "cooling off" period, during which buyers may cancel contracts on purchases of $25 or more.

Any persons receiving similar type calls should report the information to the police department. Reports can be confidential.

Dams hit low

Valley residents are using 28 per cent less water than they did the first half of last year, but the continuing drought still threatens future water supply systems.

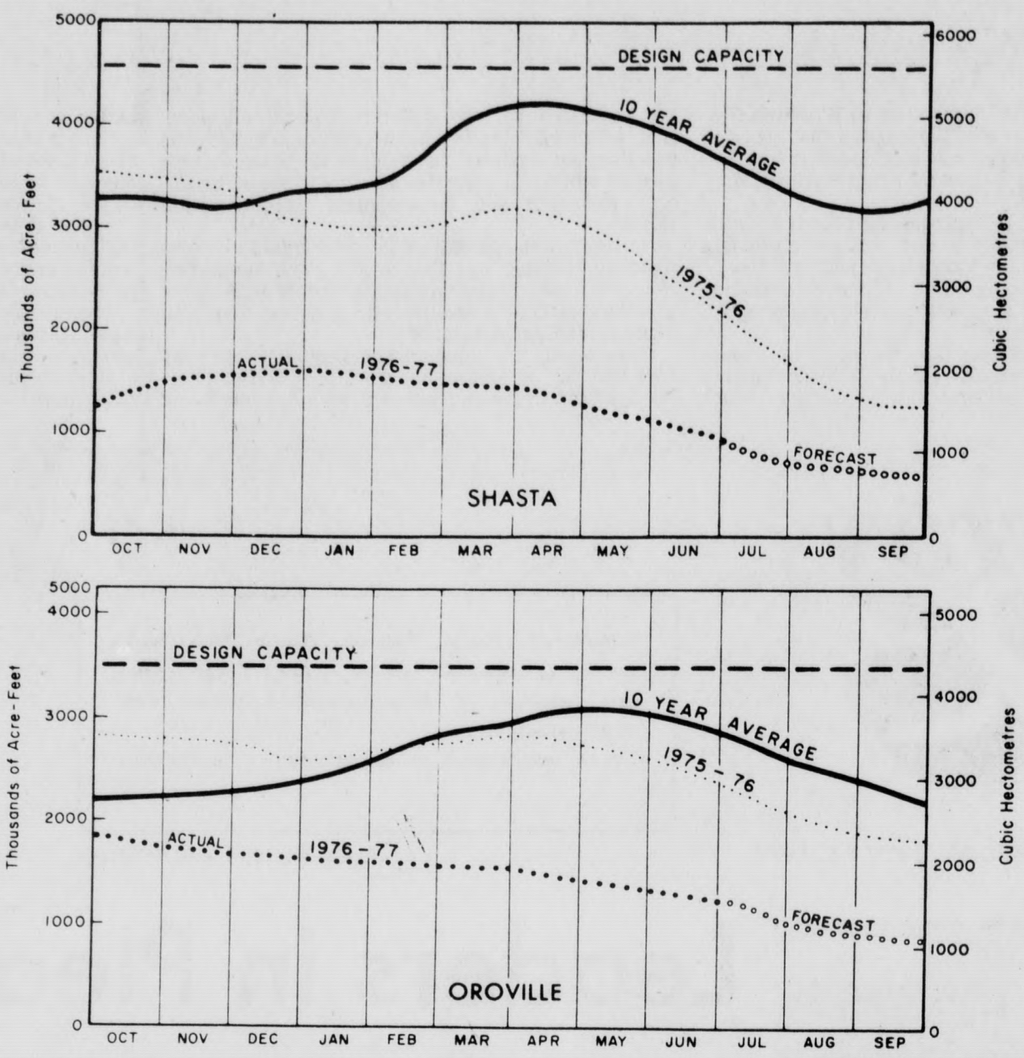
The water levels at both Shasta and Oroville dams, which are the main suppliers to the South Bay Aqueduct system providing water to the Valley, are at their lowest point in years. Runoff into the rservoirs is the lowest it has ever been.

Meanwhile, Zone 7 of the Alameda County Flood Control and Water Conservation District is working on contingency plans and examining potential well sites.

Mun Mar, general manager of Zone 7, said that the Valley had used 28 per cent less water in the first half of 1977 than it did last year. Conservation seems to have stabilized, since the figures for last month are nearly identical (a 27 per cent savings).

"If people have made a conscious effort to conserve, they have done it, with a few minor relaxations here and there," Mar said yesterday.

The experience of Marin County during the extreme drought there would be helpful if water became critically short locally, Mar said. Turning the water off to car washes and landscape irrigation would be first priorities.



Information from field surveys is being used to determine the most likely spots for underground water where wells could be economically drilled. Such factors being taken into consideration include the site's nearness to existing pipes, easy access to the location, and the quality of the water.

As of July 1, the Shasta Reservoir held only .94 million acre-feet of water, from a total capacity of .4.5 million acre-feet. Water from Shasta is released into the Delta by the U.S. Bureau of Reclamation and eventually becomes part of the South Bay Aqueduct system.

Oroville Reservoir, the main supplier to the imported water system, held 1.2 million acre-feet on July 1. Its total capacity is 3.5 million acre-feet.

Water from Oroville is released into the Delta by the state. Imported water is treated for consumption at the Del Valle treatment plant in Livermore.

Runoff into Oroville is lower than 1924 figures, the dryest year on record. It is well behind the yearly average, computed over a 71-year history.

Shasta runoff is expected to equal that which it received in 1924, although well behind last year's totals.

Earlier reports that Oroville would stop hydroelectric generation by September due to the low water level still appear correct, Mar confirmed yesterday.

PG&E usually gets up to 40 per cent of its electricity from hydroelectric generation. Right now, it stands at about 5 per cent.

The company's fuel-burning plants are currently operating around the clock in attempts to fill the power gap, a factor in the recent PG&E rate increases.

Tests show payoff in Murray schools' reading 'specialist'

Murray School District trustees will receive a by-school breakdown Monday of Stanford Achievement Test results that reflect "excellent" progress in the reading program.

Les Schmidt, curriculum coordinator for the district, states in the report to be reviewed that "Since all schools have had a fulltime reading specialist, it would appear that their coordinated efforts have been very beneficial to our students."

The Stanford tests measured first through eighth grade students of 1976-77 in reading, mathematics, and oral or written language skills.

Schmidt says the language arts areas have shown "excellent growth" this past year. "When the Resource Teacher Program was initiated in January of 1976, one curriculum area that many teachers and principals felt would benefit was that of oral and written language. It would appear that this has been accomplished."

District-wide, eighth graders tested in the spring achieved the mean grade equivalent of 9.4 in reading, 9.3 in mathematics, and 8.8 in language. The publisher test norms for all subjects at the eighth grade level was 8.8.

Third graders and sixth graders of last spring also tested extremely high.

The district-wide mean grade equivalent figures are 5.1 (reading), 4.6 (math), and 4.4 (language).

For sixth graders of 76-77, the mean grade equivalent scores district-wide were 8.1 (reading), 7.7 (Math) and 7.7 (language).

The publisher test norms for all subjects at the third and sixth grade levels averaged out to 3.8 and 6.8, respectively.

Individual school test zeniths were achieved by the following school grades:

1st grade reading— Fallon and Nielsen, both 3.0 mean grade equivalent; 1st grade math, Murray 2.8; 1st grade language, Donlon, Fallon and Nielsen, all 2.6.

2nd grade reading— Murray, 4.2; math, Nielsen, 3.9; language, Nielsen, 3.7.

3rd grade reading— Nielsen, 5.6; math, Nielsen 5.1; language, Nielsen, 5.2.

4th grade reading— Lydiksen, 6.7; math, Lydiksen 5.8; language, Nielsen, 6.6.

5th grade reading— Nielsen, 7.6; math, Lydiksen, 7.3; language, u Nielsen, 7.4.

6th grade reading— Lydiksen, 8.8; math, Lydiksen, 8.3; language, Lydiksen, 8.4.

7th grade reading— Wells, 8.6; math, Wells, 8.5; language, Wells, 8.0.

8th grade reading— Nielsen, 9.9; math, Wells, 9.8; language, Nielsen, 9.4.

Elder Wood testifies verbal permission from Woods to ferret out trespassers.

Woods, tanned and gray-haired, said he had not seen any trespassers but had been told by nurses caring for his invalid mother that news reporters with cameras had been seen on his property.

He said he told the deputies he would appreciate their assisting a private security guard, Van Lee, with keeping trespassers away, but he said no mention was made of entering the property.

During cross-examination by Alameda County Deputy Dist. Atty. Rae Boker, Woods was asked if he would have had objections to deputies entering the property.

"I don't know," he said. "It didn't come up. I really can't say."

Lee had testified earlier in the day that he drove one of the deputies around the property after they identified themselves as officers. He said he did not ask if they had a warrant.

Woods said he had learned in court Thursday for the first time that Lee had allowed the deputies to enter his property.

The defense is attempting to have a search warrant of the Woods estate thrown out, contending it was based on an illegal search on July 21. Arguments will continue Monday.

Woods' appearance was his first in court since his son was apprehended nearly a year ago. The younger Woods bit his lip frequently and glanced at his father only occasionally.

The other two defendants are James Schoenfeld, 25, and his brother Richard, 24. All three are charged with 27 counts of kidnaping and are being held in lieu of $1 million bail.

Livermore recall is fizzling out

LIVERMORE — Hope has faded for Paul Tull's city council recall attempt.

Still looking jaunty with his straw hat and smiling blue eyes, Tull spent yesterday afternoon at his petition stand outside the Alpha Beta market and said he intends to do the same today. Then, at 5 p.m., he'll turn in his pages pf petitions to City Clerk Dorothy Hock.

But the petition (drawn up by James Carskaddon, David Eller and Roman is fallin0far short of the required signatures, Morkowski as well as by Tull) partly because nearly 10,000 signatures disappeared from his car, he claims, two weeks ago when he was arrested for an alleged driving violation.

It cost him $157 to put the required legal notices in the newspaper to run the petition drive, an expense the city watchdog claims he can't afford again. So, there will not be a new recall attempt — at least, not for the present.

According to the law, says Tull, a new reason also has to be found in order to mount a recall attempt. The current attempt was based on council members' support of a cross - valley pipeline despite a public vote against the project last November.

Although Tull knows he doesn't have enough signatures to force a recall election, he says he is required by law to turn in the pages anyway to the city clerk.

To pass the time between chats with passers - by, Tull is reading a library book, "Against the Law" by Leonard Levy, which discusses the Supreme Court in the Nixon administration.

Anti-public employe strike move spurred

A purported coalition of citizens, taxpayers, elected officials and businessmen, based in the San Fernando Valley, have banded together and filed an initiative constitutional amendment that would strike at the heart of present collective bargaining law.

The initiative would prohibit strikes by public employees, forced representation, forced membership or dues, use of dues for political purposes, and binding arbitration.

Dubbed the Committee for Individual Rights, the group's informational pamphlet to school districts has already been received and "no action" taken by trustees of the Amador and Pleasanton school districts.

Betty Cordoba and Dolly Swift, listed as co-chairmen and giving post office box numbers in Calabasas and Van Nuys, state in a cover letter to school board members, "It was promised that present law (SB 160) would 'promote the improvement of personnel management and employer-employe' relations within our public school system. It has not even been fully implemented and legislation is being introduced to consolidate the gains and increase the power of employe organizations over school boards. It is now apparent that the organizations never intended to abide by the concessions which made SB 160 possible."

The two claim, in their cover letter, that the California School Boards Association (CSBA) is considering reassessment of its position on the current law. They add that the board has recommended to the delegate assembly that CSBA urge school districts to uphold and maintain all decision-making authority and not allow binding arbitration or agency shop to be written into any contract.

Enclosed in the packet to school boards is a copy of the initiative constitutional amendment, which is addressed to the Secretary of State of California.

Ms. Swift says in the cover letter that petitions will be available for 150 days starting this month to gather 500,000 signatures of registered voters to qualify the initiative for the June, 1978 ballot.

OAKLAND — One of the largest alarm contracts in Northern California history — the protection of the Fremont Unified School District — has been awarded to Bay Alarm Company of Oakland, it has been announced by BAC President Evprett A. Westphal.

Installation of both smoke and thermal detection systems in the school district, which encompasses 49 sites, already has begun. Eleven junior and senior high schools will be ready for monitoring by September and the balance of the school system will be on line within another six months, according to Westphal.

Large walnut trees like the one above used to line Stanley Boulevard near Shadow Cliffs. Yesterday the "jaws" of the bulldozer showed up in preparation for the widening of the roadway to four lanes of divided highway. Area space tester feels fine

DUBLIN — Dublin's space-test volunteer, Carol Pruit, has not noticed any lasting aftereffects from her month-long ordeal.

"I feel great," she said.

Pruit was one of 10 Bay Area women between ages 35 and 45 selected by NASA to undergo a testing program conducted at NASA-Ames Research Center at Moffett Field in Mountain View, California. This series of tests ended May 10.

These test results, plus others, will help set medical standards for passengers who may ride NASA's Space Shuttle in the 1980's.

Six basic experiments were used to test the women. They involved a flight simulator, centrifuge, exercycle, lower body negative pressure, lean body mass and short-term memory tasks.

Pruit said she did experience leg cramps during a human centrifuge ride that reached 3-G force.

The last nine days of testing were devoted to a total bedrest project. Tests were run five days before, during, and five days after this experiment to determine effects. The object was to simulate weightlessness in space and learn what happens to the human body.

During this testing phase, the women were allowed to raise their heads to eat. They could prop themselves up with one elbow.

The centrifuge tests were to check effects of reentry.

None of the women had technical backgrounds.

Since Pruit quit her job to undergo these tests, she had to find employment afterwards. She formerly worked as a licensed vocational nurse.

She said she did not want to go back into that field and ended up doing many things before finding a permanent position.

"I worked for two weeks for agencies that place you on a temporary basis. Next, I did a two-week stint in a medical clinic in Fremont. Finally, I became a paper-girl for three weeks — you know, delivering newspapers door to door to customers." She has appeared on KRE Radio in Berkeley on a program called "Women Making Waves."

"And I've been photographed for a Palmolive Soap magazine advertisement but don't know if that will ever be printed."

After filling out numerous applications and going on rounds of interviews, Pruit was offered the position of District Manager with Avon Products, Inc.

Her territory will cover Mendocino County, Lake County and the Sonoma coast. She said she would be in charge of 175 Avon women.

"I found out there are men who sell Avon Products, too," Pruit said. "But I understand there aren't any in my territory."

Pruit will be moving to an area closer to her new job.

New sergeant

LIVERMORE — Richard Burruss of Livermore, a three-year veteran with the Livermore Police Department, has been named traffic and relief sergeant, a newly-created post.

The 27-year-old Burruss will assume the new job Aug. 1. He had been with the Alameda County Sheriff's Department before coming to Livermore.

Look at the VCSD candidates

Carol Pruit

DUBLIN — Seven people living in the Valley Community Services District (VCSD) have filed official nominating petitions with their Registrar of Voters for two VCSD directors positions being vacated.

The mailed-ballot election is scheduled for Sept. 6.

Originally, July 1 was the filing deadline. The date was slipped to July 8 when VCSD Director Ron Hyde chose to not file his petition. His position is one of two being vacated. VCSD Director Lila Euler's is the other. She is seeking reeletion.

If an incumbent fails to refile, the deadline date is extended to give residentsa chance to nominate people other than the incumbent, according to Roberta Jessing. She is VCSD secretary.

Seven people have applied for the positions. They are Robert I. Brown, Stephen Larson, Lila Euler, Joseph Covello, Kathie Waterson, Harry Short and Paul Schissler.

Brown is a San Ramon resident. He is President of R.I. Brown, Company in Dublin. His engineering degree was obtained from University of California in Berkeley.

Larson lives in San Ramon. He is a management consultant for Coopers and Lybrand in San Francisco. Being a certified public accountant is among his accomplishments. He has earned bachelors and masters degrees in accounting and finance.

Euler, one of the incumbents, is a Dublin resident. She has served one term (4 years). Her degree from Mills College was in biology.

Covello, San Ramon resident, has a masters degree in civil engineering. He serves as parks chairman for VCSD Citizens' Advisory Committee (CAC) but will have to give up that position if he is elected to a directorship.

Waterson listed her occupation as "community affairs advocate." She lives in Dublin. For three-and-a-half years she attended Utah University. Another half-year was spent at Diablo Valley College.

Short, Dublin resident, has a bachelor of arts degree in public relations and journalism from San Jose State University. He listed himself as self-employed as a medical marketing manager.

Schissler is a business representative living in San Ramon.

Those still serving as VCSD directors are, Chuck Ladner, Richard Fahey, Ann Jolley and Ron Hyde.

Ladner, board of directors president, was elected as a director two years ago. Prior to that, he had been appointed to fill in the unexpired term of Dr. Richard Schumacher who left the area.

Fahey and Jolley are serving their third terms. Hyde and Euler have each served one term (4 years).

After serving one term, directors have to be reelected. . Directorial elections are held every two years but not all directors are up for reelection each time.

"Two people are up for reelection one time, then two years from now three more will be ready," Jessing explained. "It's done on an alternating basis."

High cost of going to court in Contra Costa

MARTINEZ — The high cost of going to court in Contra Costa County will reach nearly $6 million next year if the Board of Supervisors accepts the recommended budget.

County Administrator Arthur Will's recommended combined budget for Superior and municipal courts and marshals totals just over $5.8 million, about $700,000 over this year's estimated expense.

Will's proposal comes under the board's scrutiny Monday at a 1:30 p.m. finance committee hearing in the board chambers in Martinez.

A 13th Superior Court judge, vehemently sought by the county's judges, will probably be the most controversial issue.

Increased criminal civil filings and the lag of almost 18 months between the time a civil case is ready and the date it goes to trial are cited as the chief reasons for adding another judge.

Will has recommended a $1.3 million budget for Superior Court, which he said includes approximately $50,000 for the 13th judge, which he listed as a policy item.

Policy items are those that the administrator's office believes must be approved by the board for funding.

The Superior Court workload has risen from a total of 13,177 civil filings in 1972-73 to 18,234 in 1975-76, but the number of cases waiting for trial per judge dropped from 193 to 172 in the same period. The state average is 150, Will said.

Currently the court has 12 judges, two juvenile referees and a family law commissioner, plus their clerical staffs.

Will has included $235,000 for the court administrator-jury commissioner's office which develops lists of prospective trial jurors in all the courts and assigns and maintains a balanced caseload for the Superior Court departments. That recommended budget reflects a $28,200 increase.

Another $44,150 is included for the Grand Jury, a decrease of more than $4,000 below last year's budget. But the Grand Jury spent only $36,000.

Contra Costa's four municipal court districts are laboring under an increased workload too. Traffic filings have increased nearly 73 per cent in the last five years, and all other filings have increased almost 81 per cent.

No new judgeships are requested in any of the four courts, for which Will has recommended a total budget of $1.7 million, including $132,000 for the marshals' offices. That recommended budget is barely $45,000 more than allotted this year.

Revenue from the judicial districts and marshals was $3.9 million in 1975-76, 40 per cent of which stayed with the county.

Of the rest 39 per cent went to the cities, 20 per cent to the state and one per cent to East Bay Parks rapid transit and schools, Will said.

Budget recommendations by judicial districts (including marshals) are:
— Mt Diablo, $12 million.
— Bay (combines Richmond and West districts), $16 million.
— Walnut Creek-Danville, $11 million.
— Delta, $615,000.

Concern for Dublin shop hub

DUBLIN — An out-of-town buyer could wreck Dublin Chamber of Commerce hopes of someday having a shopping mall behind Mervyns similar to SunValley in Concord.

Chamber officials learned that Ronald F. Boeddeker of Los Angeles has applied for a 12 acre parcel that is part of the 35 acres behind Mervyns.

Dave Burton, chamber vice-president, said Boeddeker obviously has a client and could sell out the 12 acres in small parcels. Boeddeker works for Metropolitan Advertising Agency in Los Angeles.

"If he does sell out in small parcels, the businesses could end up in a bunch of cul-de-sacs making it impossible to ever have the shopping mall we would like to have," Burton said.

In an effort to avert the possibility of indiscriminate subdividing, Burton sent a letter to Boeddeker explaining the problem.

...."It is not our intentions to restrict your development of the property," Burton wrote. "But we want you to know the Dublin Chamber of Commerce is interested in the business development of the community. We would appreciate your sending us your general plan....."

SR hearing

DANVILLE— The San Ramon Valley Unified School District board will conduct a public hearing Monday on the subject of waiving interdistrict attendance tuition.

Trustees meet at 8 p.m. at district offices, 699 Old Orchard Dr.

The board will consider the feasibility of not charging other districts for attendance in the San Ramon district of pupils from other districts.

The agenda will also include a review of the state Board of Education hearing on Walnut Creek's unification proposal, held Thursday in San Jose.

Roll out brown carpet

LIVERMORE — Youngsters in the portable classroom buildings of Christensen and Sunset East schools will be greeted this fall with a new light chocolate brown set of carpets.

The Livermore Unified School District directors Tuesday approved a single $21,479 bid from Coglin Brothers of Oakland for carpeting in seven buildings at Christensen School and five at Sunset East.

"With all the colorful things that go into classrooms these days," said one school district secretary, "it will be very attractive."

The bidding price compares with $14 per square yard, including removal of the old carpets, according to school officials.

The carpet company was given a deadline to have the carpeting installed before school begins in September.

Diet food

Even those trying to lose weight need some fats in their diet, some nutritionists contend.

Fats tenderize meat and make some foods taste better. Most important, they contain fatty acids which are essential to health. Children, particularly, need higher amounts of essential fatty acids, just as they require more of all nutrients than adults. For this reason, the milk fat contained in milk is recommended for children, some nutritionists say.

Livermore park budget

Horse buffs protest arena fees

LIVERMORE — Park directors Wednesday unanimously approved a $2,276,758 budget for next year, but first heard the plea of a local equestrian group not to sock it to them with a "double charge" for use of the horse arena at Robertson Park.

Dorothy Hudgins, secretary of Horsemen for Arena Maintenance (HAM), questioned desire of Livermore Area Recreation and Park District to place a $25 daily charge on use of the small horse arena adjacent to Livermore Valley Stadium.

HAM is a loosly organized advisory group which assesses its member horse enthusiast organizations fees that are used to upgrade the horse arena.

Hudgins said member groups are already charged $25 per day, with a maximum assessment of $100 for the year. She said HAM has spent $400 so far this year to purchase plywood and make various repairs to the facility.

The LARPD budget shows an estimated income of $750 for arena use fees and $2,250 for rental income from a water truck used to control the dust there.

"LARPD charges $25 a day, HAM members shouldn't have to pay double," she complained, also protesting the water truck rental hike from $25 a day to $75.

Park Superintendent Lowell Bergman said the water truck fee hike was needed because of increasing costs and personnel shortages created when weekend water truck assignments take personnel away from regular weekday duties.

Directors decided to keep the expected income levels in the budget, but agreed to discuss the fees with HAM members at a future date.

Director Mike MacCracken failed in his attempt to wipe another expenditure off the budget — $175 slated for LARPD directors to attend the annual chamber of commerce dinner.

He called it a "social gathering" and said taxpayers shouldn't be expected to pay for it.

"Sometimes you get more results talking to someone on a social basis than if you spend five hours at a meeting trying to hammer out a point," answered Director Ernie Rodrigues.

Brown: not the favorite in farming

By SUSAN SWARD
Associated Press Writer

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. has been trying to appease California's agriculture community as the 1978 election draws near, and he is achieving only limited success.

The Democratic governor has been praised for his appointment of Yolo County farmer Richard Rominger to head the Department of Food and Agriculture.

In some sectors, he has also won applause for his work on a proposed $3.5 billion compromise on water projects including the Peripheral Canal.

But many of the major agribusiness lobbyists in the Capitol are still suspicious of Brown's motives and leery of his long-range goals.

If those feelings translate into a large anti-Brown vote in agriculture areas next year, there is one school of thought that holds it won't matter much because urban areas have the bulk of the vote.

But negative feelings about Brown extend from some small farmers to corporate farming executives.

"The agricultural community is disturbed. There are too many danger signals," says Jim Van Maren, agriculture lobbyist for the California Chamber of Commerce.

Van Maren and other agribusiness lobbyists generally cite the same grounds for dissatisfaction with Brown.

They point to his refusal to support an agriculture-backed land use bill, his staff's critical stance on the massive Westlands Water District contract and what they say is farmers' reduced influence on the Food and Agriculture Department.

They also cite his signature on unemployment insurance legislation for farm workers and criticize his early appointments to the state's farm labor board, set up in 1975.

And they note Brown's personal relationship with Cesar Chavez, head of the United Farm Workers union and anathema to many growers in California.

Last November Brown supported Chavez' Prop. 14 on the ballot, a measure to toughen the state's farm labor law, and that position angered many growers.

Rominger, Brown's new agriculture chief, says in response to the complaints:

"I am realizing the agriculture community still has these concerns, but I think the governor does have a general concern in the health of the agriculture economy of the state. And he does want to be involved in helping keep agriculture the No. 1 industry."

Les Hubbard, spokesman for the Western Growers Association, says many people in the agriculture community believe Brown, a city-bred politician, is not sympathetic to agriculture.

"I think agriculture pretty generally allies itself with business. They feel they prosper best in an atmosphere that is business-oriented and favorable to business, and this administration is not business-oriented."

Hubbard, who represents 1,200 growers and allied agriculture businesses, is one of those who acknowledges that agriculture areas lack the votes to unseat Brown. But he says:

"The only way to meet the challenge is to make up in financial contributions what we lack in people. For the last five or six years agriculture has become more politically active than it had been in the past. It's an indication of the growing political awareness of agriculture."

Pleasanton School

Gazette newspaper office is summer nerve center

PLEASANTON— What offers dedications, presents a "funky alphabet," features students-of-the-week, a wrapup of Little League games and your horoscope for the week?

None other than the latest entry in the communications business, Pleasanton School's Summer Gazette.

The inspiration of Claudia Armstrong, a summer school teacher at Pleasanton, the Summer Gazette hopes to come out weekly through the Pleasanton district's summer session, which runs through July 29.

The journalistic neophytes, mostly seventh and eighth graders, and their teacher, a regular staff member at Walnut Grove, set some sort of a record for getting a brand new newspaper into circulation.

First edition "hit the streets" on July 1, barely a week after the commencing of summer session.

The premiere effort was long on features, including a "creative excuses" column....for example...." Someone on the way to school stole my homework"....." My mom used my homework to line the bird's cage".... "I'm not late, the clock is fast"....." Someone said the teachers were on strike."

Or, "What is a bull when it is sleeping?".... "bulldozer"....courtesy of Debbie Gatterer. "What can travel around the world and stay in one corner?"..... "a stamp".....thanks to Janet Brown.

The Summer Gazetters opine they'll be back with more editions, despite the pugnacious puns, this week and next.

Among the staff members contributing to the paper, with a potential audience of 700 summer students, are Paul Stewart, Sheri Karush, Bill Florence, Scott Engel, Lisa Oh, Gwen Dahl, Tim McCutcheon, Deanne Schirmer, Janet Brown, Debbie Gatterer, Kim Hungate, Christine Wood, Larry Carpenter, Eric Snowden, Rick Rennels, and Renee Arnett.

Rep. Stark reports win on lab bargaining rule

WASHINGTON — Congressman Pete Stark (D-Oakland) reported a broad, bipartisian Senate coalition approved his amendment which would give Lawrence Livermore Laboratory employes the right to unionize and bargain collectively.

The coalition of 57 northern and southern Democrats and moderate Republicans beat back attempts to defeat the amendment initiated by Senator S.I. Hayakawa (R-Calif.). Coalition approval was given Tuesday.

Consequently, the legislation offered by Rep. Fortney H. (Pete) Stark was included in the Senate version of the fiscal 1978 authorization bill for the Energy Research and Development Administration (ERDA).

After lengthy debate, two Hayakawa amendments which would have killed or gutted the Stark legislation were defeated by votes of 57-36 and 57-37.

stark (D-Oakland), whose ninth District includes Livermore, hailed the votes as "significant moves toward assuring fair labor policies for the 6,000 lab employes."

Stark thanked Senator Alan Cranston (D-Calif.) for his help. Congressional observers noted the votes represented the first major labor victory in the Senate this year.

In April of this year, Hayakawa offered a similar amendment to strike the Stark provision from the 1977 ERDA authorization bill. The amendment passed by voice vote and Stark's legislation appeared doomed.

Stark mustered support from Senator Frank Church (D-Idaho) and Senator Henry Jackson (D-Wash.). The labor language was put bck in the bill in committee and reported to the floor for consideration.

The House is scheduled to consider its version of the ERDA authorization bill next week. Stark got his provision through the House last year but may face stiffer opposition this time.

The Livermore Lab, one of the nation's major nuclear research centers, is operated by the University of California under a federal contract from ERDA.

Stark offered his amendment after conducting an investigation of complaints over Lab management's "confusing and unfair labor practices."

Among other things, the Stark Amendment provides that "no funds can be used for any contract after Oct. 1, 1977 unless the contract specifically provides that employes of the Laboratory are protected by impartial grievance procedures, including binding arbitration..."

The contractmust also "guarantee employes the right to form, join or assist labor organizations... and to bargain collectively through representatives of their own choosing."

"Under the current confusing and overlapping procedures," Stark added, "a Lab employe has inadequate recourse in case of a grievance. Grievances concerning salaries, merit reviews, performance evaluation, working conditions, job classification and harrassment are subject only to administrative review."

Stark contended such sensitive employe-employer areas must be governed by procedures other than administrative discretion.

Lab employes include chemists, physicists, engineers, administrators, secretaries, custodians, boilermakers, plumbers, truck drivers, guards and store keepers.

Traffic ills

Three members of the Pleasanton city council faced up to a very difficult decision when they were confronted with a street project that is of emotional concern to 17 home owners, but that will be of longterm interest to thousands of local motorists.

Del Valle Parkway is one link in a plan designed to allow local city traffic to flow from the northern reaches of the community to the eastern sector, without having to pass through the downtown bottleneck.

On paper, Del Valle Parkway looks logical and necessary. In practice, it will "divide a residential neighborhood and threaten the health and safety of small children."

That is the argument being mounted by home owners who reside along the projected route. They have steadfastly resisted the Parkway as now planned. They may go to court to reverse the city council's decision which in effect allows the new street to go in.

No one can fault those families for fighting to "preserve the quality and the safety of our neighborhood." That is a goal every one of us must accept, every step of the way. But there are other goals too ... the melding of a total communiy, the recognition that 35,000 of us must get from here to there by driving down busy city streets ... streets too often made impassable by peak - hour traffic. We look to local government to ease that problem, for all of us, while at the same time spreading the burden as far as good engineering and reasonable judgement will permit.

We believe the city council majority endeavored to do just that, by concluding a ten - year effort that now looks to completion of Del Valle Parkway. That plan may not be perfect, does need adjusting in recognition of one neighborhood's needs. But the place to accomplish those adjustments is at city hall, and not some distant court.

The people along Del Valle Parkway, and all 35,000 of us, will best be served when we learn to face up to our own problems, and work out our own solutions.

VCSD unique

The Valley Community Services District board of directors is a unique venture into representative government, even by the Bay Area's uncertain standards.

In essence "the local governing board" for the thriving community of Dublin, the VCSD panel has considerably less impact — although providing some services — to a portion of San Ramon Valley, on the Contra Costa County side of the line. But VCSD's major utility is located well within the boundaries of the City of Pleasanton, and fully one - third of the city's land looks to VCSD for sewer service.

In the very near future, Pleasanton could make up the bulk of VCSD's sewer business, with all of the city's wastes being sent through that utility district's plant.

But Pleasanton has no representation on the VCSD board and, as the city has learned from sad experience, very little input into how the Services District does its business.

San Ramon, which has limited interest in VCSD's function, has unlimited opportunity to influence that five - member board. Currently three of the five directors reside in San Ramon; two live in Dublin.

Following new elections later this year, San Ramon could increase its representation on the VCSD board to four seats ... Chuck Ladner is the only Dublinite who is assured of another two years on the board.

There is nothing illegal or even improper with all this; San Ramon residents bring just as much in talent to that Services District as might anyone else. But it is interesting to observe the function of the district and the dimensions of its authority, and then relate that back to the weight of its elected representation.

It is not the best example of representative government, and someday we suspect the people will recognize that.

FOCUS/Criminal justice

The funding line

A meeting of some consequence to law enforcement in Alameda County is set later this month in Sacramento.

At stake is several hundred thousand dollars in criminal justice funds for various crime prevention, probation, victim-witness, and narcotics enforcement projects.

A 33-page list of projects statewide being considered for funding was released earlier this month.

The California Council on Criminal Justice will meet at 10 a.m. Friday, July 29 in Sacramento to consider funding of the projects.

Chief among the county projects is one applied for by the Sheriff's Department and titled "regional crime prevention partnership program." Requested in the amount of $100,000, the program would coordinate and promote police-citizen crime prevention activities at the local level.

Semblances of police-citizen cooperative efforts have previously been attempted throughout the county. Funding of the one proposed by the Sheriff's Department would complement and expand on those in the communities.

With suburban, unincorporated areas continuing to feel the influx of criminal activity from metropolitan preas, the Sheriff's project would appear long overdue.

There are a host of other projects that various county units have sought funding for, including the following:

The Sheriff's Department has also applied for a $161,970 grant for a regional narcotics enforcement program. The monies would setup a multi-agency narcotics task force focusing on major dealers as well as street narcotics trafficking. Southern Alameda County and Oakland have become centers for drug trafficking....to the point where law enforcement officials have had difficulty trying to control it.

A case in point is the housing project in Oakland that has become a wide-open distribution center for drugs.....though in full view of police.

The Sheriff's have also applied for a $36,065 grant to fund an "Alameda County Law Enforcement Coordination Project." This would provide central staff to the association to maximize coordination among independent jurisdictions in the county.

A grant application in the amount of $71,838, by the Alameda County Probation Department, would fund a psychotherapeutic program for high risk children and adolescents.

A state-licensed clinic will provide individually-tailored, psychotherapeutic outpatient treatment to 250 high risk youth for a period of four to six months.

District Attorney Lowell Jensen's office has made application for $65,488 to underwrite a DA's Victim-Witness Project. The project is designed to substantially reduce the problems created for citizens by the criminal justice system and to remedy inefficiencies in the treatment of victims and witnesses.

These projects, of course, will be in competition with similar projects from the other major counties and cities throughout the state.

For example, the County of San Mateo has a single project titled law enforcement communications in the amount of $200,000, substantially more in dollars than the highest-priced project requested by any Alameda County agency.

Santa Clara County is asking for $286,144 for a women's residential center — and it goes on like that for 33 pages, all of which the California Council on Criminal Justice will have to consider when they meet on the 29th at the Woodlake Quality Inn in Sacramento.

City condemns

Editor, The Times:

The city of Livermore is known throughout the state for just taking what it wants by the public domain process of condemnation — witness P street, witness North Livermore Avenue, etc.; witness the South S property of Mr. Leonard; how many assessment districts are there in Livermore? No one would dare tell!

With all this, why doesn't the city just condemn the property being used for the merchants' parking? Why stop there? The old Hub area was threatened with condemnation ... why not the parking lot? Why isn't some of the SP property condemned for parking for the Public Good ? Why is it that condemnation only seems to be used when the people are helpless and defenseless and have no means for fighting back? Seems the merchants have every right to expect the city to do for them on a small scale what the city did for Southern Pacific Land Development Corp. on a gigantic scale.

Hot home sales

Summer is hardly the time for cooling trends, but mercifully the temperature is sliding in real estate.

In the past two months housing prices here have levelled off. Big demands for homes have waned and real estate speculators are beginning to capitulate to the tight money practices of bankers.

All of this was reported in a two part series in The Times last week. Three local real estate brokers hailed the 'return to normalcy' in home sales. Several bankers assured that profit seekers, who buy and sell for quick cash, are being squeezed out.

It was welcome relief for shoppers who have been bombarded by the housing boom of the 1970's. Many find homes today priced out of their reach. East Bay suburbs like Pleasanton and Danville are off limits to family incomes of less than $30,000 annually.

The end of stratospheric price spiralling isn't going to change any of that. We're just hoping it will cool down long enough for the pay check to catch up a bit.

In the past two years demand for housing (and not the cheap stuff) has bordered on madness. Consider a few cases from right here in the neighborhood.

They built so many homes in San Ramon, and filled them so rapidly, that there's no room left in the schools. Talk is of double sessions to handle thousands of new students.

The ownership craze boiled over in one luxury development on a golf course. Waiting lists 200 names deep were drawn up for condominiums and homes ranging from $80,000 to $100,000. People purchased from a relief map, pointing to a tinker-toy model of a house and squealing; "We can still get this one with a view of the lake."

In Dublin a real estate broker went pleading door-to-door for homes to sell. Her impatient clients were awaiting the last of a vanishing breed, suburban homes with a $50,000 to $60,000 price tag. The desperate realtor couldn't find enough property to fill their needs.

It got so bad in another East Bay suburb that potential buyers bid like farmers at a hog auction when new listings hit the market.

Well at last the peak has been reached, the forecasters say. And just in time.

Young families, or low income families on the climb, had written off home ownership. Those fortunate enough to be in a house were fearful of selling — they'd never afford another. Available rental housing has disappeared.

And the prices?

The $30,000 home your mother and father scrimped and scrapped for 15 years ago is probably in six figures now.

Average cost of a home out here may range as high as $80,000.

Obviously no matter how much cooling off occurs in real estate, no one will roll back those prices. We're stuck with them. If demand is tailing off, however, and realtors assure us it is, prices may be held in check for awhile.

Meanwhile, bankers say they're devising new ways for us to purchase homes. One idea is a sliding mortgage scale — low monthly payments for the young and less affluent, ballooning as income increases.

If real estate really has passed the crest of the latest boom, financiers will have to devise even more ways to get us back in the buying mood.

At today's prices, it won't be easy.

round the town

"But, just where the hell are you??"

Our caller was not being insulting; just honest. When it comes to telling a stranger just where we are, it is first necessary to advise that visitor who we are. And that's something few of us can agree on.

Rancho el Valle de San Jose was our first handle. And a very fine name at that. The Spaniards liked it enough to spread the name across a few million acres. But a mission on the south end of the Bay globbed onto the "San Jose" portion, and that left the rest of us to struggle for our own reference point.

And oh, how we struggled!

Still are. But not making much headway, judging by the split personality we spread across these hills and gullies.

One thing we are hung up on is "Valleys." Trouble comes in determining how many.

Mr. W.W. Wood in his "History of Alameda County" reminds us that, insofar as that one county's portion of our kingdom is concerned, we are all "Murray Township". Or at least we were until General Pleasonton passed through, dropping off his name as he went, and dropping also an "o", for which some idiot city clerk substituted an "a" ... city clerks weren't much on spelling then, either.

Murray Township was mighty big. Too big, they said. So some latter - day politicians spun off "Pleasanton Township" ... leaving poor old General Pleasonton lost in the archives of misspelled words.

Anyway, Mr. Wood did ascertain that the "Murray Township" of 1900 was rich in valleys. "The Valleys of Murray Township are the Livermore, Vallecitos, Sunol, Amador, Alamo and portions of San Ramon and Tassajara."

A more recent breed of archivists agrees with that, but substituting "Upper Amador Valley" for all of Dublin, and acknowledging "San Ramon Valley" only once you cross the line into Contra Costa County.

But don't go away.

We were once all "Contra Costa County." The "other side" of San Francisco Bay, get it? The big shots decided it was all too much, round about 1850, and split off "Alameda County." (These guys were a third generation spin - off of the bunch that obliterated "Drake's Bay" in deference to a brash title that some say was the ego trip of one Lt. Juan Francisco de la Bodega y Quadra. Can you imagine a song writer coming out with "I left my heart in Juan Francisco de la Bodega etc."?

What they did leave was a lot of nice titles, somewhere along our travail through history.

How does "Monte Diablo Group" grab you? Or forget that ambitious developer from England and try "Mendenhall Springs" in place of "Robert Livermore's Station." Matter of fact there is still a Mendenhall Springs, but it's lost out in the hills somewhere, beyond the Del Valle, which is another town title we sort of passed up.

Anyhow, given "Sept Valley" or portions thereof, this quest for our identity cannot overlook the considerable economic impact which might result from that search. Why, just in neon signs alone, there must be a fortune invested in "Valley" this and "Tri Valley" that, not to forget our old friend, "Twin Valley."

You'll still see an occasional Twin Valley around, but not looking very aggressive. And certainly not very commercial.

Next to "Mendenhall Springs" my own preference runs to "Spring Valley." The title is brief, pretty, and would fit easily onto billboards, and mastheads, such as "Read The Spring Valley News for All The News About Spring Valleyites."

All else failing, we could resurrect "Alisal", but even Pleasanton (Pleasonton?) is losing most of the Sycamore trees which once prompted the Spaniards to lend us that pretty name.

"Corral Hollow"? Sounds too much like a western shootout. "Joaquin Murrieta Junction"? Neon sign makers would lose their alphabetical minds. "Kottinger Korners"? That would only start a fight with Bob Livermore's heirs.

No, if we are truly sincere about bringing this troubled vale into one union, if we would erase once and for all the confusion that abounds within our Valleys, one, three or portions of seven, then we must recall the genius of one Jedediah S. Smith, that bible totin' explorer who wrote the following to the presiding cleric of Mission San Jose', that fortress of Spanish Catholicism which dominated all ...

"Reverend Father," wrote Captain Smith. "I understand, through the medium of one of your Christian Indians, that you are anxious to know who we are ..."

We are still wondering. But I now propose that we end our quest by choosing for our suburban conglomerate the one title that honors the man who first acknowledged our problem ... "Christian Indian."

EARL WATERS

Non voter

It may be a small point. It probably is irrelevant and immaterial. To a majority of Californians it may even seem just as inconsequential as it obviously was to Governor Jerry Brown. That is the disclosure by his office that one of his appointees to the new Community Release Board, Antonia Radillo of Upland is not registered to vote.

But at least to some citizens such a fact sticks in the craw worse than a turkey bone. Perhaps it was because the announcement came just as the state prepared to observe the nation's 201st day of Independence that it seems so insulting. Still, on any day of the week a similar revelation should have a sting.

Wasn't that what the American Revolution was all about? The right to representation, a right of the people to have a voice in government? How then can one who has so light a regard for this precious right, won only through the sacrifice of the fortunes, blood and lives of the nation's founders, fulfill an important position in government?

The board replaces both the Adult Authority and the Women's Board of Prison Terms and Paroles and assumes the duties for each in determining the release dates of those serving time in the state's prisons.

All nine of the members appointed to the new board have been members of the boards being replaced. Excepting for two all, including Radillo, were appointed to the former boards by Brown.

All must again have their appointments confirmed by the Senate. The Senators will be derelict in their duties if they fail to examine closely the reasons why Radillo is not qualified to exercise the vote, which school children are taught is the primary duty of every citizen.

Radillo is not just a lay person suddenly chosen for public service. She is an attorney and, as such, an officer of the court. She was a deputy public defender in San Bernardino County prior to her appointment to the Women's Board last year. As an attorney she has acted as a legal adviser to various minority groups.

So it is more than just how this non-participation in grass roots governmental decisions relates to her service on the new parole authority. It is a question involving her whole attitude towards government.

Does she believe the vote of an individual isn't important? If so, she doesn't seem the proper person to be advising minorities. Is she contemptuous of the system? If so, wouldn't that affect her attitudes in the job of judging criminal offenders who perhaps violated laws because of contempt for the system? The public deserves answers to such questions bpfore the Senate confirms her to serve on this important and sensitive board.

Only recently the Senate rejected an ill conceived proposal by Senator Nicholas Petris, who authored same he said at the request of the governor, which would have permitted the appointment of non-citizens to state boards and commissions.

So important did the founding fathers hold the citizenship requirement for public office that it provided it was not enough to be President and declared such person must be a native born citizen.

To many then, it must seem worse to enjoy the status of American citizenship and yet fail to exercise the basic privilege of this nation of the right to vote.

Garage sales

Editor, The Times:

With the advent of summer weather more and more people are conducting garage sales. Many of these people place advertising signs on various standards on public property. Such signs are illegal and require police action in removal.

In contacting the people who have placed these signs, we have discovered that the vast majority are not aware that such signs are illegal. Had these people been aware that the signs were illegal, thpy would not have posted them.

Many of the people we have contacted have also placed an ad in the newspaper regarding the garage sale. It is at this point that I would like to enlist the assistance of your newspaper. I would suggest that when someone calls your paper to place an ad for a garage sale in Livermore, that the newspaper employee advise the caller regarding the placement of signs. Enclosed is a copy of the City Code section that pertains to such sign placement.

I am sure that this suggestion will not stop all the signs. It will, however, provide an informational outlet to aid members of our community.

Dr. Joyce Brothers

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: I'm a young woman and I like to have my men open doors, pull out chairs and pay for an evening's entertainment. And I do believe in equal pay and equal opportunities for women but I just don't understand why some liberated women get so uptight if a man opens the door. I think because women are physically weaker, they deserve these little attentions and I don't see how it possibly hurts anyone. — L.A.

DEAR L.A.: Opening doors, pulling out chairs, and even paying the bill are really political acts in the sense that they do affirm a patriarchal society in which the man has the authority. In our society it is the person with authority who opens the doors. This is the person in control. Opening a door gives a quick rundown of who's in charge, who has thepower. The door ceremony and the chair ceremony reaffirms for both sexes their sense of gender identity. It isn't accidentally structured, for in a very profound way these ostensibly simple acts are reminders of the moral perspective of our culture.

While females are usually physically smaller than males, it's highly questionable that they're "weaker." They outlive males, have fewer illnesses and are better able to endure debilitating physical hardships. Studies have indicated they are emotionally far better able to endure stresses and strains of all kinds.

If equal pay and equal job opportunities were a reality, would you still feel that it should always be the male who picks up the check? Remember, you can't have it both ways.

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: My son and I got caught in a terrible conflict over the Vietnam war and my wife and I hadn't heard from him for the past four years. We were naturally deeply hurt and thought the last quarrel had severed our relationship forever. He wrote us a month ago, and our old enmities are beginning to heal. He told us we're grandparents and invited us to see our grandchild. We don't know what to expect but we're afraid my son and his wife will have exotic views on bringing up a child. Unless we see actual child abuse, we've sworn each other to silence, however. — T.P.

DEAR T.P.: You may be pleasantly surprised. Studies of young people who grew up in the 1960s show that as parents, they're much more traditional than their parents would expect.

Most of these young families are optimistic about the future, fairly self-confident and believe they're doing a good job in rearing the children.

Researcher Daniel Yankelovich sees a new contract being worked out between young parents and children. The younger parents will lead their own lives, sacrificing less for their offspring, and they believe that the children owe them nothing later on.

If he's correct, you'll probably find that your son is passing on to his child most of the values that you passed on to him. Try to visit them as warm, loving observers and save any criticism you may have to try out first on each other.

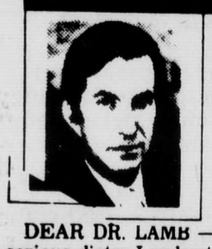
Dr. Lamb



DEAR DR. LAMB — As a serious dieter I understand it takes 3500 extra calories to add one pound of body weight. But how long does it take for food to transform into neutral body weight? If I eat a one-pound can of spinach, for example, the scales reflect a one pound gain, even though the caloric count is very low. Please explain.

DEAR READER — The point is that pounds on the scale are not pounds of body fat. A pound is a pound — even of water. You really mean that 3500 extra calories will produce one pound of body fat.

The spinach weighs a pound, so if you stick it in your stomach it will increase your body weight one pound. The scales would register an extra pound if you held the spinach in your hand. That weight is from undigestible fiber, water and a few calories. The water, and undigestible material will be eliminated from the body. The few calories that are left and that have been absorbed after digestion will then be used by your body for energy or if they are extra calories, more than your body needs, they will be stored as fat.

I am surprised how many people do not understand the difference between calories of energy in a food and the weight of a food. A pound of lean round steak with all the fat removed is almost 75 per cent water. The true food value of any food in terms of energy is expressed as its calorie content, not its weight.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am a female, age 26, married. I have had infectious mononucleosis for six weeks now. Please explain this virus. How is it caught? How long does it take to recover? If this is the "kissing" disease why doesn't my husband have it?

DEAR READER — Like many other viruses it starts out with an illness characterized by a sore throat and fever. There may be enlargement of the tonsils — if a person still has them, with enlargement of lymph glands in the neck, under the arms, in the groin and elsewhere. The illness usually lasts from two to four weeks, sometimes longer with weakness after the initial illness.

The spleen is enlarged in about half of the cases and because of this it is wise to not engage in vigorous physical activity until you have completely recovered. That is why athletic coaches should not allow their athletes to compete or engage in activities that are strenuous. This can cause rupture of the spleen, which is then a medical emergency. Fortunately, this is rare.

The virus is often transmitted by intimate contact — kissing. Many people get the virus when they are small children and the disease does not present the same clinical picture. They are then immune to the disease. It is likely that your husband already had the disease as a child and probably no one knew it. I hope the reason is not because he hasn't kissed you for sometime! And I should add that one can get the disease without kissing anyone. So your husband can't accuse you of getting the disease from kissing someone other than him.

What happened to your breakfast? The food you eat gives your body the energy it needs to work and grow. But food must be digested before it can be used.

As you ate breakfast, your teeth chewed the food into small pieces. Saliva from your mouth moistened the food so you could swallow it easily.

When the food reached your stomach, powerful muscles in the walls of the stomach churned the food and thoroughly mixed it with digestive juices that poured out of glands in the stomach lining. The partly digested food then passed from the stomach into the small intestine where it was mixed with more digestive juices.

When completely digested, the food particles were absorbed by the blood vessels of the small intestine and then carried by the blood to all parts of the body where the food is used for energy.

The parts of food that cannot be digested or used leave the body as waste.

Opening lead — 2♠

By Oswald & James Jacoby

Inspired defense usually starts with the choice of the opening lead. Today's hand shows Belladonna and Garozzo of Italy beating an expert declarer at an apparently unbeatable contract.

Both South players arrived at four spades in an IMP match. The king of clubs was opened against the Italian declarer who proceeded to make five odd by eventually discarding three of dummy's diamonds on clubs.

Belladonna opened a trump. His unfortunate opponent won in his hand and played the king of hearts.

Belladonna was in with the ace and promptly led the seven of diamonds.

South studied the situation for a long time. He knew that Belladonna was perfectly capable of underleading the ace-king of a suit. He also knew that he was equally capable of leading from ace-jack or king-jack which were two other possible combinations. Finally, declarer went wrong and played low from dummy whereupon the defenders had three diamond tricks and a 13 IMP profit.

Pleasanton's Gypsy is in rehearsal

PLEASANTON— Casting for Pleasanton Playhouse's production of "Gypsy," scheduled for an August run, has been completed and rehearsals are now underway.

This musical requires the services of over 50 singers, actors and dancers for the many Jule Styne-Stephen Sondheim numbers which make it so very special. Director Glenn DuBose and choreographer Don Wilson had to decide between 150 aspiring performers who tried out during three days of open auditions.

"Gypsy" debuted almost two decades ago on New York's Broadway with Ethel Merman playing the lead. It is considered one of the all-time great stage musicals.

Cast in the part made famous by Miss Merman, that of Mama Rose, is Sue Arnold. Miss Arnold teaches drama at Mount Eden High School in Hayward, and in fact knows several of the other performers as former students. She appeared in the Chabot College production of "I Can Get It For You Wholesale," directed by DuBose in 1975, which won an award at the American College Theatre Festival for the best west coast college production.

Taking the title role of Gypsy Rose Lee, Sammy Hamilton of San Lorenzo comes here directly from her lead role in the Hayward Area Recreation Department's production of the musical, "Peter Pan." Gypsy is her 72nd show since she began singing opera 12 years ago.

Don Juhlin, cast in the role of Herbie, graduated from the Pasadena Playhouse and has done little theatre work in San Antonio, Texas, at Woodminster in Oakland, the Cabrillo College Summer Festival and in "New Moon" with Diablo Light Opera.

"I would like to be an actress," says Heather Wilson, cast in the part of June. "But I would settle on being a fashion designer." As a drama student at Amador Valley High School in Pleasanton, Heather has taken parts in prouctions of "The Crucible," "Cinderella," and "Alice in Wonderland." She studied ballet for six years with the Contra Costa Ballet Center, and also appeared in the Contra Costa Musical Theatre production of "Carousel."

Paul Del Vecchio, who portrayed Marco-the-Magnificent in the Valley Performing Arts Company's production of "Carnival," will take the role of Tulsa. A theatre major from Chico State, Paul is a dancer with eight years of training, primarily in tap.

Costumes are being designed by Chabot College's Merrill Curtis and sets by Tom Languth f San Francisco. Technical direction is the domain of Jim McKie, also of Chabot, and musical direction by Pleasanton's Mark Lepiane.

Triad of youthful "Gypsy" performers; Carlinda Ewing, Jill Whelan, and Holly Vonk.

More land for parks

SAN RAMON — An additional 1.23 acres of land, to be dedicated to the East Bay Regional Parks District next week, will provide another access road to 187 acres of open space the district received last year.

When the Otto - Podva property was subdivided last year to allow for 70 lots, the developers gave 187 acres of ridgeland to EBRPD.

At Tuesday's meeting of EBRPD directors, the board will accept an extra 1.23 acres, which will provide a non-vehicular access road from San Ramon Valley Boulevard, via Remington Drive.

The entire acreage is presently in the district's "land bank," awaiting final disposition. A park district spokesman said a citizens advisory committee had expressed interest in establishing small parks in the area.

The new acreage would provide a hiking trail to the open space.

An EBRPD spokesman said the district would consider transferring title of the land to the R-7 service area for park development.

Directors also are expected to approve purchase of 15 acres of land on the east side of Interstate 680 near Alamo for a hiking and equestrian trial up to Mt. Diablo.

The land, valued at $82,500, would connect to the La Gonda Way underpass between Stone Valley Road and El Pintado.

A move last year to set up a similar trail was opposed because of the expected traffic congestion. This plan would avert most congestion problems, a spokesman said yesterday.

The college market

Housewives, senior citizens, veterans job up-graders and retrainees are all potential consumers of higher education, David Guzman, Chabot College's Director of Counseling and Guidance, said today.

"There are 71 million high school graduates who either never started or never finished college. Some 25 million in this group are continuing their education on a part-time basis, but fewer than one-in-nine attends a college or university," he added.

Guzman pointed out that Chabot College in Hayward and Valley Campus near Livermore offer tuition-free education to residents of the South County Community College District. The only costs incurred are for books, supplies, and other institutional aides.

The college is currently accpting applications or the autumn quarter, which begins Sept. 19. There are many classes still available for students interested in a day program. Counselors are on hand during the summer on a drop-in basis for those who wish to know more about the college's programs and services.

Applications may be obtained by telephoning 782-3000, ext. 448 or 352.

"It's best to sign up now and avoid the lines," Guzman advised.

He further indicated that flexibility is an important feature at Chabot College. This allows the student to relate his study to work and other life patterns. Also available are programs for those who feel they need help with basic skills befor proceeding with regular college work, and special re-entry to education classes.

All eyes are on the kids

On Sports

Youth baseball, which seems to go into hibernation during the high school season as far as popularity and student support goes, always takes the spotlight during the summer months.

Countless Little League, Babe Ruth, Big League and Connie Mack teams compete, generally before large, enthuastic crowds.

Bret Cary

This is in contrast to the small followings high school baseball teams in the valley (and everywhere else for that matter) receive.

The primary reason for the popularity of youth baseball during the summer is the absence of any prep sports to compete with Little League, Big League, etc, for the fans.

There is also a great deal of community pride involved in the youth baseball programs, particularly at the playoff stage of the season.

Babe Ruth and Big League teams compete against teams from other parts of the East Bay during regular season and the "competitive spirit" of both the players and fans is very evident.

The caliber of player in Big League competition is equal to that of high school athletics. The reason for that is obvious since most of the Big League players are from high school teams.

Players like the Cary brothers, Bret, Chuck and Gregg, plus Larry Walters, all starred for California High School last spring, and are doing the same for the Dublin Valley A's this summer.

Bret is batting over .500, Chuck and Larry over .400 and Gregg has a .321 average.

Babe Ruth teams, while composed of younger players than the Big Leagues, also offer an ex' 'ting brand of baseball for the fans.

There's usually a lot of hitting in Babe Ruth games, and that. combined with errors that kids 13 to 15 years old are prone to make, makes for exciting wide-open games that stur the fans' emotions.

This was evident in Tuesday night's 13-year old All-Star Babe Ruth All-Star game between Pleasanton and Hayward American.

The Hayward fans and players, probably because their team was heading towards a 10-5 loss and elimination from the tournament, became increasingly vocal during the course of the game.

They questioned several calls by the umpires and several Hayward players had to be restrained by their teammates.

This is not unusual in Little League or Babe Ruth playoff competition.

With the intense pressure on the players, a lot of it coming from their parents, the kids are prone to make mistakes and get caught up in the excitement of the competition.

Thus, an occasional verbal exchange or altercation is inevitable.

There appears to be less pressure on the kids at the Little League level. Most of them are just learning the game the coaches, realizing this, expect the players to make errors.

However, by the time a player becomes 13 or 14 years old he realizes if he plays well in Babe Ruth or Senior League it can help prepare him to play on the high school team. Thus, he puts more pressure on himself and the coaches, thinking the kids can handle it better, also exert pressure on the players.

Many of the parents of the players also realize that the "Babe Ruth" stage is important in a kid's development if he is to play on the high school team and have any chance of making it to college or minor league ball. The dream of most of the parents is to see their kids "go all the way to the major leagues," something that only a very few will ever realize.

Despite the pressure and e' tion built up around youth baseball it's still basica' a healthy sport for kids to particpate in.

After all, many Little League and Babe Ruth coaches say that the biggest asset of youth baseball is the way it builds a kids' character.

If a young man can learn self-discipline and the ability to meet a tough challenge then all that pressure and attention involving youth baseball during the summer months may actually turn out to be more of an asset than a disadvantage for the youth.

Padres score, and score...

NEWARK — It's too bad the umpires stopped yesterday's game between the Pleasanton National Romley's Padres and the Centerville National Giants in the sixth inning.

Who knows what would have happened if it continued.

The Padres blasted the Giants, 25-8, and took the lower bracket championship of the District 57 Senior Tournament of Champions by remaining undefeated. They face the San Ramon Royals on their own field at the Hopyard Sports Complex Saturday afternoon at 1:00 for the District crown.

The Padres, facing a Centerville team which survived a rugged, darkness - scratching battle with Livermore National's Lone Star the previous evening, scored 11 runs in the first inning and kept pouring it on against the defenseless Giants.

All the Padres needed was a single win to advance to to tomorrow's final, while the Giants had to beat them twice in order to stay alive.

"You can't win a tournament like this when you've lost one game already," muttered a Centerville rooter after the long contest was finally stopped nearly three hours after its beginning. Admittedly, the losers' bracket is not a nice place to be when you must face a team that had a five-day rest before the game.

And The Padres made sure the label stayed that way behind the booming bats of Bill Serrao and Bill Edwards, each of whom drove in six runs.

Serrao added icing to the cake in the Padres' first-inning outburst with an inside-the-park, grand-slam home run. All other hits in the inning, which featured five walks by Centerville pitchers Mark Garcia and Bud Lofton, were singles by Casey Strom, Edwards, Ken Van Boening and Matt Dwyer.

The Giants had taken a short-lived 1-0 lead in their half of the first on consecutive triples by Lofton and Duane Carnes.

And while Centerville cut the lead to 11-4 in the third inning, the Padres shelved any Centerville hopes of coming back with a five-run outburst in the thirc inning.

The key hits in the stanza were consecutive trilpes by Edwards, which cleared the bases, and Eric Nostrand. Serrao, Dwyer and Greg Danska also singled in the inning.

Pleasanton scored three more runs in the fourth when Serrao singled, Edwards laced another triple, Dwyer looped a sacrifice fly and Jan Woodruff blooped an RBI single.

Six more runs in the fifth inning put the game, which had been decided a long time ago, in Romley's pocket. Woodruff rapped another tworun single while Serrao and Van Boening also drove in runs with hits.

The score would have been upped to 26-8 had it not been for a successful appeal play by the Giants on a home run hit by Greg Danska with two men on base.

Danska missed second base while circling the bags, and the Giants checked him on it. Danska, therefore, was credired with a single and two RBI's.

The Padres will probably throw Edwards on the mound against the Royals tomorrow. The San Ramon League also has a team in the Major TOC finals going against Dublin at Marshall School in Fremont at 1:00 tomorrow.

Bucki isn't overdoing it

It's common for athletes to praise their team mates. If Bucki Nolan seems like she's overdoing it, she's not.

Nolan, a 17-year old Pleasanton rider, qualified for the World Championships in a horse show event called Working Cow Horse, a contest where great shows of hustle are a ghastly sight to the judges.

"You have to show your horse off as being able to work with a free rein," said the slender daughter of the owners of Nolan Farms, alongside the race track. "You have to show how little you need to do to keep him in line."

Not unlike the "cutting horse" sport gaining in popularity in the shouthwest, the Working Cow Horse event requires the horse and rider to move a randomly selected bovine around the arena.

Once the cow is released, the rider drives the cow through two right turns and two left turns before circling it. Nolan is one of the lucky one's whose horse, June's Little, flows through the routine with ease.

Still, after piling up enough points to qualify for the world championships in events at Riverside, Bakersfield and San Martin, Nolan can't take it easy.

"It's a little like the relationship between a horse and a jockey," said Nolan, soemwhat of an expert after living a good portion of her life on a thoroughbred farm. "You have to have a good horse, but you still need to ride him well."

Lou Silva, of Woodside, trained both Nolan and June's Little, the 1975 Mare of the Year in her event and quarters June's Little on the Peninsula. Even without her usual mount close at hand, Nolan stays in the saddle.

She rides lead ponies in the mornings when her boyfriend gallops one of the ten horses in training at the family farm. A few, such as Overtime and Discord's Discourse race the Northern California circuit and ran at the Alameda County Fairgrounds, across the street at Nolan Farms.

Others find themselves shipped off to Arizona's Turf Paradise.

Bucki and June's Little will find themselves in comparitively stiffer company when they travel to Tulsa for the championships, Aug. 1-6. Some $30,000 in silver belt buckles, bridles and saddle blankets will be up for grabs.

And, despite her importance to the team, June's Little won't be a hold out.

Junior golf

New, old faces in finals

There will be two familiar faces and a couple of new ones in the second annual Junior Golf Association of Northern California Match play championships at Castlewood Country Club today.

The girls' finals will see defending champion Linda Bowman of San Rafael go against last year's runner-up Maureen Galligan of Burlingame However, the boys' finals have Bob Clampett Jr. of Carmel going against Alamo's Kent Kluba. Neither golfer made even the semi-finals last year. Clampett did not even compete.

Clampett qualified for today's finals with a thrilling 2-1 victory over Eddie Luethke of Los Altos. Kluba, who is a member of the Castlewood club, edged topped Vince Baxter of Los Gatos 9-8 on the 10th hole of the second round of the 36-hole competition.

Clampett, a recent graduate of Robert Louis Stevenson High School, opted for the State Amateur and National Junior Championships last season. His opening 67 in the First round of the Nationals was the best ever for that tournament. But he faded in the third round and was eliminated.

Clampett showed some of that talent on the 13th and 14th holes of the second round yesterday.

"On the 13th hole I was backed up against the fence but still managed to hit the ball to within 12 feet of the hole," he said. "Then I used a seventh iron to hit it in."

Then Bob eagled the 14th hole with a 110-yard shot with a wedge. He was one-down before the 13th hole but that brillant display of golf put him in the lead for good.

Clampett will bring some impressive statistics into his finale with Kluba. He was the leading point getter among Northern California jr. golfers last season and is also leading the pack this year.

Kluba, who upset defending champion Bill Corbett Wdnesday, never trailed in his match with Baxter.

Galligan went the full 36 holes to win 2-up over 12-year old Nancy Brown of Salinas.

Brown was three -up after the first 18-hole round but Galligan's experience gradually ate up the margin.

"No, I didn't expect this match to go this long," Galligan answered frankly. "But I do know it will be a very tough match against Bowman tomorrow".

Bowman defeated Terry Preciado of San Jose 7-6.

Linda was u lead six-up after 27 holes and cinched the match on the 12th hole of the second round.

Brown and Preciado were also semi-finalists last year before losing to Bowman and Galligan.

In Tuesday's girls' action Bowman defeated Denise Buttell of Lodi, 6-4 and Preciado disposed of Judy Hoffman of Livermore, 7-6.

Galligan defeated Kathy Ninz of Santa Clara, one-up and Brown toppled Sarah Kayson of Capitola 5-4.

The finals will also be conducted in two 18-hole rounds. The first one begins at 8:30 a.m. and the second at 1:30 p.m.

Allen Gets New Pact

WASHINGTON (AP) — George Allen will be coach and general manager of the Washington Redskins for at least four more seasons under a contract signed Thursday — a pact described by his boss as one of the best in the National Football League.

Redskins President Edward Bennett Williams said Allen had agreed to terms on a four-year extension of his current seven-year pact, which expires after the 1977 season, "at a very substantially increased salary."

Williams also described as inaccurate a published report placing Allen's new salary at approximately $250,000 a year, or double his current pay.

The team president declined to disclose the terms, but said The Washington Post report had several inaccuracies.

A Pleasanton-Livermore final

It will be a battle bewteen two end of the Valley tomorrow when the District 57 Minor Invitational finals are held at the Hopyard Sports Complex in Pleasanton.

The Hacienda Del Sol Orioles, representing the Pleasanton American Little League, and the Livermore American LLLRA Minor League squads tangle the championship game of the single - elimination tournament.

The Orioles advanced to the finals by whipping the San Ramon Falcons, 14-7, Wednesday night while LLLRA reached the end by walking all over Niles Centerville, 21-8, in a game at the Dublin Sports Grounds.

The Orioles topped San Ramon by virtue of some clutch hitting and pitching. Darren Vassis and Doug Ryan combined to toss a seven-hitter, while Bob Lemeke played an outstanding game at shortstop for the Orioles.

Lemeke made six personal putouts, all unassisted.

Matt Shaw played well behind the plate, while Casey Mahan was a stellar defender for the Falcons in centerfield and Steve Zavattero at second base.

Vassis clouted four hits and drove in a run, while Bob Zedlitz singled twice and had an RBI, Matt Shaw had four RBI's and two singles, Doug Ryan singled, doubled and tripled, Bob Peck singled twice to drive in two runs and John Salameh singled twice and drove in a pair of runs.

Kurt Jahirg doubled, Ross Reynolds singled and doubled and Eric McKierman tripled for the losers.

David Tuck and Jim Miller combined to keep the Livermore American squad undfeated on the season, scattering seven hits.

LLLRA dominated play with strong defense and good baserunning.

Bagorio threw out three hitters from that were outstanding plays to hepl defeat Falcon rallies.

The Orioles won an earlier game with Mission San Jose, 32-6, Saturday at the Dublin Sports Grounds.

Doug Ryan singled twice, doubled and had five RBI's for the winners. Mark Harris singled three times and drove in four runs. Bob Lembke singled twice for two runs and Steve Moulis doubled.

Vassis and Ryan combined to pitch a five-hitter. Lembke and Bob Zedlitz again played outstanding defense for the Orioles.

Altamont hosts sprint-car clash

TRACY — Altamont Speedway will be the host of the Northern Auto Racing Club's sprint-car race to be held Sunday with qualifying beginning at 4 p.m. and the first race set for 6 o'clock.

The event is part of a weekend series between the NARC and the southern-based California Racing Association, which is holding a similar event at Bakersfield's Mesa Marin Raceway Saturday evening at 7 p.m.

Both tracks will offer a $4,000 purse with $1,000 ticketed to the winners of both 25 lap main events. A $500 bonus has been added for the series' overall champion.

Driving stars for both clubs are preparing for the first-ever match series with CRA's 1976 champion Jimmy Oskie and NARC's defending titlist Leroy Van Connett as expected entrants. Galt's Van Connett and Downey's Oskie are both three-time champions of their associations. Sprint car owners with no club affiliation are invited for the Mid-July series.

Noll hacks at violence

SAN FRANCISCO — Coach Chuck Noll of the Pittsburgh Steelers said Thursday excessive violence in the National Football League could ruin the game.

"One of the things I'm concerned about is what would result from a lack of respect for the rules," Noll said as he testified for a second day in George Atkinson's $2 million slander suit.

"When you have players trying to get away with whatever they can get away with, it's very scary and can be devastating to the people who play the game and the people who watch it," Noll said.

"If we allow people to go on and violate the rules, it's going to escalate and that's not what you want in the game."

Noll and the Steelers are defendants in the federal court suit filed by Atkinson after Noll linked the veteran Oakland Raider defensive back to a "criminal element in football" and said Atkinson had tried to maim Steeler receiver Lynn Swann in a game last September.

Noll was questioned Thursday about a number of fines leveled against Steeler players for illegal acts on the football field dating back to 1971. Noll said he could not recall the specifics of some because they occurred four years ago or more.

"Do you think that in four years people will have forgotten Mr. Atkinson's hit on Mr. Swann?" he was asked by attorney Dan Mason.

"Probably not," Noll said. "Television coverage bloomed that thing up to a great degree. The act that was committed and comments by TV commentators will stand out in peoples' minds."

"Did you know national attention had been focused on the incident when you made the remarks?" Mason asked.

"No," Noll said. "I know there was concern by a lot of parties, by our people and I'm sure by a lot of Oakland Raiders. As I was walking out of the locker room after the game, (Raider guard) George Buehler told me he would like to apologize for the actions of some of his teammates."

Noll was asked repeatedly by Mason if he specifically had Atkinson in mind when he made his comments, but Noll would saying only that he was referring to anyone who willfully and wantonly breaks the rules.

"The statement was made with violence in mind, with mayhem in mind, and with all the ramifications that would bring in mind," Noll said.

Only in SJ: Breskis and pasta

SAN JOSE — The Buffalo Breskis, named after their owner, make their only visit of the Women's Professional Softball season to San Jose tonight, through Sunday.

San Jose and Buffalo will collide in three doubleheaders at Municipal Stadium, each to be highlighted by a promotion.

Friday will be Italian Night at the ballpark. The first 1000 adults to enter the park that night will receive — ready? — a can of tomato sauce and one pound of spaghetti free.

The first game starts at 7:30 p.m. and no pots of boiling water will be available.

Saturday will be photo button night with children 14 years of age and younger receiving a badge of a Sunbird player and Sunday will be Box Seat Cap Night. Any person purchasing a box seat ticket will be given an official Sunbirds' cap.

Game time for that one will be 6:30 p.m.

On the field, meanwhile, the Sunbirds moved into first place in the WPS over the past weekend by whipping the expansionist Bakersfield Aggies five out of six times. San Jose raised its record to 28-14 while Connecticut fell out of first place for the first time ever with a 25-12 mark.

The 'Birds opened the Bakersfield series with a 6-4 win over the Aggies, 18-year old Rhonda Ebersole notching her eighth win in 13 decisions with relief help from Bonnie Johnson.

San Jose lost a 16-inning marathon the next night in the first game of a double header, 3-2. Pat Whitman, sold to the Aggies by San Jose during the off season, beat the 'Birds for the third time this season.

Rayona Sharpnack (1-2) took the loss in relief for SJ.

The Sunbirds won the nightcap, 6-4, with Johnson, now 9-4, getting the victory.

Sue Lindh, barely able to walk because of a jammed knee, stepped off the bench as a pinch-hitter in the second game of last Saturday's double header and promptly delivered a run-scoring single that gave the Sunbirds a 4-3 win and a sweep of the twinbill.

Ebersole chalked up the win, raising her record to 9-5. In the first game, Cheryl Stewart (8-3) tossed the Sunbirds to a 3-2 win. Johnson (10-4) wrapped up the series for San Jose Sunday with a 6-4 win.

Diane Kalliam starred at the plate with a double and triple.

'Quakes meet Dips

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The San Jose Earthquakes, clinging to a third-place tie in the Southern Division and their hopes of a play-off spot face the Washington Diplomats here tomorrow night (4:45 p.m., PDT, radio - KXRX-1500).

The game comes on the heels of one of the teams most frustrating losses, 1-0 in tie-breaker shots, to Fort Lauderdale Tuesday and is the last of the current trip before the 'Quakes come home to meet the Chicago Sting in a nationally televised contest a week from Sunday.

That game will be blacked out in the Bay Area. The 'Quakes would probably like to black out the match with the Strikers from their collective memory.

The San Jose defense was tested through out the first half at Lockhart Stadium, with goalkeeper Mike Hewitt, back in the cage recently after a brief rift with coach Gabbo Gavric, forced to make two outstanding saves.

Midway through the half, Striker forward George Nanchoff took a 12-yard shot that defender Buzz Demling blocked, the rebound going straight to Dave Proctor in front of the net. Proctor's seven-yard blast was nabbed at the right side by a diving Hewitt save.

At 35 minutes, Hewitt came up with another gem, this time Striker Colin Fowles shot from point blank range, but Hewitt tipped his shot over the bar with a last-second leaping save.

San Jose almost put the game away 13 minutes into the second half when Paul Child beat the Ft. Lauderdale defense and centered a ball to Geoff Davies, but his six-yard header sailed just high of the goal.

Hewitt, who set an Earthquake record with 20 saves, came up with key stops in the tie-breaker on Strikers Ray Hudson, Tony Wheland and Nanchoff. Maurice Whittle and Dave Proctor scored in the best of five shoot-out attempts while only Dave Kemp disturbed the nets for San Jose.

Child, Ilija Mitic, Laurie Calloway and Davies all failed to put it in for San Jose and Davies' shot was saved by a sensational dive by Striker goalie Gordon Banks, once England's national team 'keeper before an automobile accident cost him the sight of one eye.

Hewitt was credited with a shutout for blanking the Strikers in regulation and sudden death play to tie his own mark of six shutouts in one season, set a year ago. Shootout goals are not charged to the goalie.

Mitic, the North American Soccer League's all-time scoring leader, played the last 20 minutes of the game. It was his first appearance for San Jose since late May.

Two starters, Tony Simoes and Leroy DeLeon both missed the game for the 'Quakes due to injuries.

C&C outlasts Liquors

C & C Beauty Supply waited until Kavanagh Liquors had tired itself out scoring seven early runs and rallied to score all its runs in the fourth and fifth innings to win a Livemore Area Recreation and Park District Women's softball game, 8-7, Wednesday.

Marla Kenitzer, the winning pitcher, swatted a single for the Beauties while Christy Palmer singled and tripled, Jane Macias singled twice, Debbie Young singled, Betty Malsam singled, Sherri Santos singled, Lynette White singled and doubled and Bobbie Bartram doubled.

For Kavanagh, Nancy Dean singled for the only hit off Kenitzer.

United California Brokers - sponsored Leon's Libbers held off a seventh-inning rally by Bob's Babes to score a 6-5 triumph.

Judy Lee tripled and doubled for the Libbers while Jo Shafto singled, Carol Lameste singled twice, Linda Arrduard singled, Sheila Akins singled, Nancy Braun singled, Sue Worth singled, Mary Wilder singled, Cathy Dilger singled and Brenda Busse singled.

For the Babes, Paula Yost singled, Paula Burlin tripled, Annie Pardue singled, Joanne Smith singled, Lyn Tassel singled.

In the other scheduled contest, Pizza Arcade was forced to forfeit its tilt with the Irby Milk Maids when only eight players showed up.

"The Loved Ones" Dave and Judy Travers

'Loved Ones' concert Livermore

LIVERMORE — The Loved Ones, a Bay Area based husband and wife Gospel singing team, will be presenting a Sacred Concert at Bethany Baptist Church, Walnut Street at Junction Avenue, on Sunday, July 17.

Dave and Judy Travers, The Loved Ones, are the son and daughter-in-law of an Evangelical minister and Bible teacher, and were both brought up in the Northeastern part of the United States.

Both were very active in the music programs of their respective schools and churches, and received much aclaim for their individual endeavors.

Married for four years, they have decided to combine their God-given talents, together with their love for God and their faith in Jesus Christ, and share this faith and message of salvation with others through word and song.

There will be no admission charge for the concert; why not bring a friend?

Human rights activist takes ABC presidency

Cora Sparrowkof Ione, has been elected the sixth woman president of the 70 year old American Baptist Church in the USA. She is an activist for human rights.

In accepting the presidency, she is giving up her presidency of the Board of International Ministries. "I have felt that ecumenical dimensions have added tremendously to my own life, and I covet this experience for other people."

Mrs. Sparrowk was greatly influenced in her religious beliefs by the degrading way she saw black people treated during her Tennessee childhood. She is protective of human life and believes capital punishment to be unChristian, and abortion to be wrong, permissible only in cases of rape or incest.

Cora plans to encourage a growing sense of global responsibility within the American Baptist Church in her two year term of office. She feels a great concern over the mission task of the church.

Human rights are an area she plans to stress. She is concerned about world peace, although she says she is not a pacifist. She is distressed about the lack of freedom and human rights in countries such as South Korea, and she is fervent in her support of justice movements in the United States.

The mother and grandmother says she is growing in her appreciation of the feminist movement. "While at times it appears a bit radical, I do support the goals of equal employment opportunity, equal pay and equal representation," believing all employment positions must be open to persons without restrictions as to race, sex or color.

However, she says "I am proud of being Mrs. and I object to being called Ms.

Cora, and her husband John Sparrowk, are both active members of Church of the Valley, Danville, California.

Ford's latest this summer

Ford Fiesta, the most successful new car ever introduced in Europe, will go on sale at Ford dealerships in the United States later this summer, William P. Benton, a Ford Motor Company vice president and division general manager, announced.

"Fiesta offers sports car feel in a quality- built, small-car package," Benton said. "It's a car that must be driven to be appreciated, and test drives for dealership customers will be a major part of our introduction program.

"Fiesta represents the most extensive new-car program in Ford Motor Company history — an $800-million, seven-year investment in research, design, development and new plant facilities.

"Our effort already is starting to pay off in Europe where discriminating car buyers have given Fiesta an overwhelming vote of confidence. In fact, European Ford dealers sold more than 118,000 Fiestas during its first six months on the market — the highest introduction sales total for a new-car nameplate in Europe's history.

"Our dealers are equally enthusiastic about the German-built Fiesta that soon will be added to their line of fuel-efficient small cars. Fiesta is certain to further strengthen our reputation as America's small-car headquarters."

Built to exacting standards at Ford of Germany's Sarrlouis assembly plant, the front - wheel - drive Fiesta is powered by a four-speed, floor-mounted manual transmission and performance proven 1.6-litre Kent overhead-valve engine.

Fiesta's driveability is enhanced by rack-and-pinion steering for more precise control and a MacPherson-strut front suspension system for improved directional stability. Heavy-duty shocks, stiffer spring rates and a rear stabilizer bar are optional.

In addition, Fiesta's long list of standard equipment also includes Michelin steel-belted radial tires, front disc brakes, bright aluminum bumpers, high-back bucket seats, carpeting and a fold-down rear seat.

Air conditioning, tinted glass, a rear window wiper/washer, sporty cast aluminum wheels and power front brakes are major options.

Fiesta will be offered in one model — a three-door Hatchback ith four trim levels: standard, Decor, Sport and Ghia.

Fiesta's Decor Group Option includes trim and functional extras such as intermittent windshield wipers, an electric rear window defroster, a rear-seat package tray, fully reclining low-back bucket seats, special cloth-and-vinyl or all-vinyl upholstery, woodtone instrument panel appliques, bright window moldings and black body-side tape stripes.

The Fiesta Sport Group Option includes Decor Group features as well as a tachometer and trip odometer, sports suspension system, four-spoke steering wheel, "S" bodyside tape stripes, bright wheel trim rings and bolts, extra-wide 4.5-inch wheel rims, and distinctive Cadiz cloth-and-vinyl or all-vinyl seat upholstery.

A Ghia package offers special sound insulation, 155SRx12 Michelin steel-belted radial tires, velour cloth-and-vinyl upholstery, a visor vanity mirror and vinyl-insert bodyside moldings in addition to a number of features standard on Decor and Sport models.

An attractive, fun-to-drive car, Fiesta also has many serviceability and practical convenience features that are unavailable on other cars in its size and price range.

Fiesta's clutch and brakes are self-adjusting, for example, and the steering system, suspension ball joints and front wheel bearings do not require scheduled maintenance. From fuses and bulbs to bumpers, brake rotors and exhaust systems, the Fiesta reflects designed-in simplicity of replacement and repair procedures. Owners also will enjoy the advantage of readily available parts and service through a nationwide network of 5,200 Ford Fiesta dealerships—more than any other import car.

Function and economy were basic Fiesta design considerations. Built on a 90-inch wheelbase, Fiesta weighs less than 1,800 pounds. If 1977 emission-control standards are carried forward into 1978, Fiesta is expected to achieve a highway mileage rating of more than 40 miles per gallon and a city rating of about 33 miles per gallon.

Fiesta's front-wheel-drive and transverse-mounted engine design place more weight over the driving wheels for good traction, and saves space that translates into additional room for passengers and luggage. For maximum passenger comfort and roominess, Ford planners used six-foot-tall mannikins to establish Fiesta's interior dimensions and seating package. Rear seating is exceptionally good with more leg room than in most other cars in Fiesta's class.

Driver and passenger visibility is excellent because of the car's short hood, slim roof pillars and rear door glass. The hatchback door extends down almost to the rear bumper for easy loading and unloading of groceries or luggage. Even with the rear seat in an upright position, Fiesta has nearly seven cubic feet of usable luggage capacity, and with the rear seat down there are 29 cubic feet of cargo space.

AUTOMOTIVE

Reliable

When Ron Herman of Orinda bought this 1953 Volkswagen from an Albany dealership he had no idea that 25 model years later he would be going back to the same place for a 1977 VW Rabbit diesel. Herman poses with his daughter Harmony, sons Merrit (left) and Chris and wife Carolyn with the beetle that averaged 33 miles-per-gallon for more than 218,000 miles.

Impact of car imports

The imported automobile industry in the U.S. is a vital economic factor which contributes jobs, taxes and investments to the strength of the American economy, according to a recent study by a national research firm.

Harbridge House, Inc., a Boston research company, disclosed that more than 127,000 Americans are directly employed by the importers, distributors and dealers which make up the imported automobile industry in the U.S.

Highlights of this study are condensed in a booklet which is available from Tri-Valley Datsun in Livermore.

"The imported automobile industry is an important American employer," said Robert McElwaine, president of the American Imported Automobile Dealers Association. "The sudy proved that if a significant number of new car sales were suddenly switched from imports to domestics that a substantial number of American jobs would be lost.

"Even though employment in the domestic auto industry would rise initially, in the long run more U.S. jobs would be lost than gained and hundreds of independent businesses would be forced to close," McElwaine said.

The annual payroll of the imported auto industry in America is over 1.48 billion dollars, — making imported cars equal in size to the 12th largest U.S. company.

Other contributions of the imported automobile industry include: 4,500 businesses entirely dependent on imported cars; 1,850 businesses partially dependent on imported cars; 2,300 new independent businesses created since 1964.

In 1975 the imported automobile industry spent over 120 million dollars on U.S. port-related activities and paid 76 million dollars in vehicle transportation charges. It also spent over 260 million dollars in advertising and sales promotion and paid 230 million dollars in taxes.

The Harbridge House study reports that in addition to being a paying partnr in the U.S. economy, the imported automobile industry has pioneered improvements in automotive safety and economy.

Items such as radial tires disc brakes and three-point seat belts first appeared on imported cars.

Also fuel economy and emissions improvements brought about by imported cars have contributed to energy savings and environmental balance.

"Jobs, investments and improvements — that's what the imported automobile industry means to America," said McElwaine. "And the American consumer, who can save money on the purchase and operation of an imported car, benefits most of all."

Charmers by Hallmark

Yesterday's pleasures still bring joy today.

Why drive a Mercedes-Benz 280SE? Here's a car full of reasons:

Safety. Control. Driving confidence. Peace of mind. All are valid reasons why one chooses a car. For many people, a Mercedes-Benz is the only logical answer to these requirements. Get to know the 280SE, and you'll understand why.

You can see at first glance that the 280SE is a graceful car, an obvious heir to the legendary Mercedes-Benz reputation for elegance. What is less obvious is the degree of control, and the resulting sense of confidence, it imparts to you.

What gives the 280SE its unusual capabilities? Scores of advanced engineering ideas combined into a unique whole. Ideas that have made a Mercedes-Benz the most copied sedan in the world... that have, over the past five years alone, given Mercedes-Benz a higher average resale value than any luxury car made in America.

Mastery, not mysteries

All of the special qualities of the Mercedes-Benz 280SE are down-to-earth and practical; they're neither mysterious nor hard to understand. Quite simply, here is a car that responds to your command. A car that helps to make your life a bit simpler instead of more complicated... and, perhaps for the first time ever, lets you feel that you are driving with maximum control.

You can appreciate these benefits each time you take the wheel. Some features that create them are standard equipment on the 280SE—yet are missing from even the latest models of other makes. For example:

Most cars, even luxury models, surprisingly, still don't have independent suspension on all four wheels. The 280SE does. Which means the 280SE keeps better contact with the road, and thus can help you be master of even a wet, twisting, bumpy road. And powerful four-wheel disc brakes (most cars have no disc brakes, or only two) help you slow down and stop with control and authority.

The list of practical "pluses" goes on:

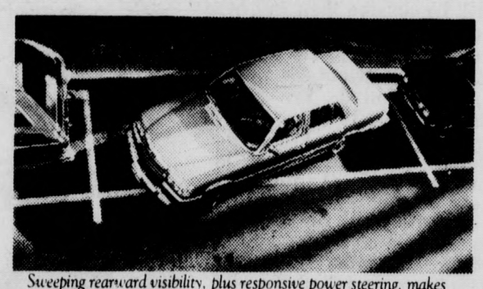
Panoramic visibility—In the 280SE you have a clear view of the world through over thirty square feet of tinted glass.

Cruise Control with a memory—It maintains any speed without your having to touch the gas pedal. After you accelerate or slow down, simply touch a switch to return the car to your original speed.

Automatic Climate Control—Winter or summer, muggy weather or dry, this system was designed to help keep the temperature and humidity right where you set it.

Security system—Turn the key, and instantly you've locked all four doors, the trunk and the gas-tank filler port.

Instruments that truly help—Some cars have warning lights that only tell you when your car's in trouble. The Mercedes-Benz 280SE's numerous instruments keep you informed at all times; there's even a helpful front brake-pad wear indicator.



Sweeping rearward visibility, plus responsive power steering, makes backing the 280SE into a tight space refreshingly easier.

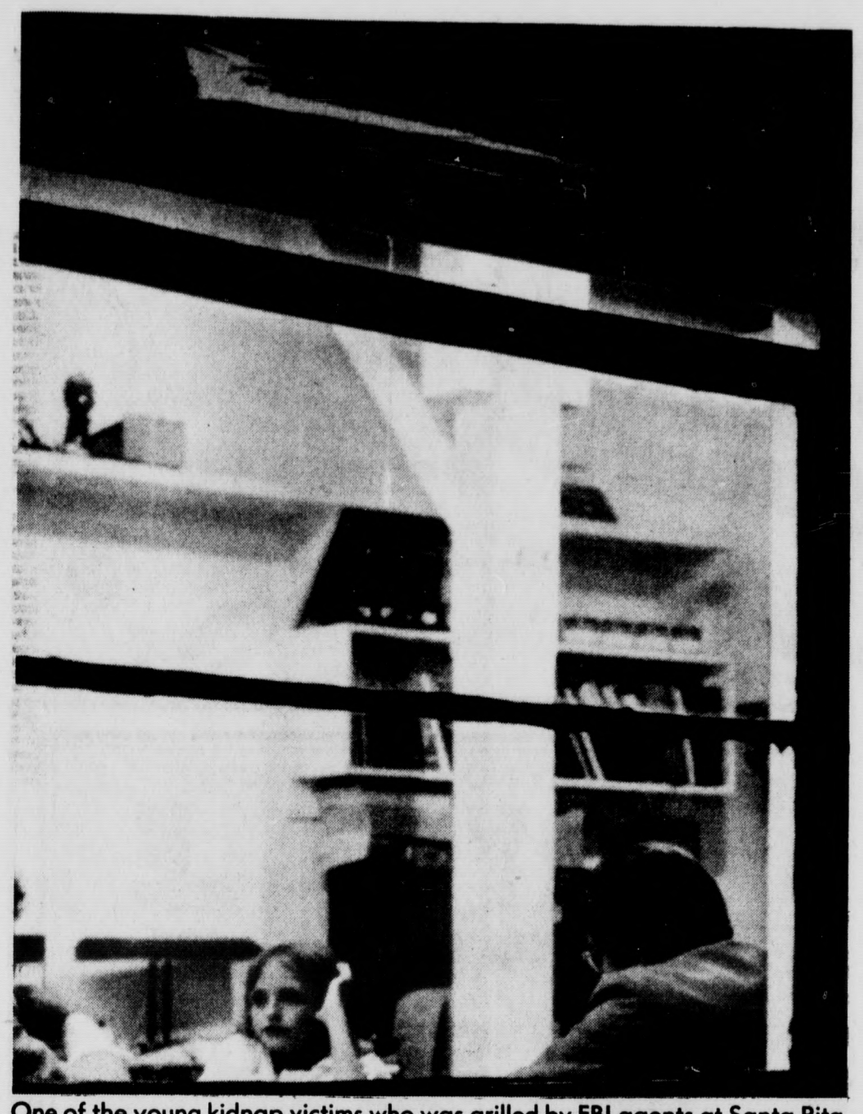
Multipurpose safety control—Without taking your hands off the steering wheel, you can actuate the turn signal, dim or brighten the headlights, wash the windshield and turn on the three-speed wipers.

Generous door openings—The 280SE's front doors open a full, unobstructed 36 inches. A blessing when you enter or exit with an armload of packages.

The trunk of the 280SE offers a capacious 18.2 cu. ft. of usable space.

Why drive a Mercedes-Benz 280SE? See your Mercedes-Benz Dealer and arrange for a get-acquainted spin. You'll quickly discover a car full of reasons.

Chowchilla, one year after



One of the young kidnap victims who was grilled by FBI agents at Santa Rita Prison a year ago, after their discovery in a Livermore gravel quarry.

CHOWCHILLA — It's noon on a scorching summer day in his tiny farming town made famous by a band of kidnapers whose crime grabbed the world's rapt attention a year ago today.

The counter of the TommyHawk Restaurant, once jammed with reporters from across the nation, now is lined with men in sweaty workclothes. A woman in big hair curlers sits in one corner and gabs about a recent phone conversation.

No one is talking about the anniversary of the bizarre event which hurled Chowchilla onto front pages and television news shows around the world July 15, 1976 — the abduction of 26 children and their driver from a bus headed home from a summer school outing.

"No one talks about it much anymore," waitress Tammy Powell tells a visiting newsman. "We don't even think about it as much as everybody else. You people from out of town are more interested in it now than we are."

When the children failed to come home and their abandoned bus was found by a dusty roadside, a massive search was launched.

But the youngsters and driver Ed Ray were 100 miles away, trapped in a buried moving van at the Cal Rock gravel quarry in Livermore.

After 18 hours in the makeshift prison, they managed to burrow to freedom. None were seriously injured by their brush with death, a fact which may have made the incident easier for this sun-baked town to forget.

In the year since, Chowchilla has managed to shrug its shoulders and return to its slow-motion rural routine. The kidnaping was one of those things, the townsfolks say. It happened. It's over.

"What has changed because of it? Nothing," says Leroy Tatom, superintendent of the Dairyland School where the children were taking summer school classes when the kidnaping occurred.

"We have the same routine, the same teachers, the same kids," he says. "Our enrollment is about the same. Nothing's different. I feel it was just kind of a one-shot deal. Bingo. It happened. That's it."

Jim Dumas, who was mayor of the town of 4,500 persons last summer, blames the news media for prolonging the attention which was heaped on his normally peaceful community.

"What do you guys want to come back here and stir it all up for?" he demands.

"I would have just preferred to let the anniversary day pass without any notice whatsoever," he said. "It's like opening an old wound. We're over it now and we'd just like to forget about it."

Dumas claims the abduction's impact here has been minimal.

"The only thing I've seen as a direct result of the kidnaping has been people stopping to take pictures in front of city hall," he said. "And we have a sign by the railroad that says, "Welcome to Chowchilla." I've seen many cars with out-of-state license plates stopping there to take pictures in front of the sign."

Many locals fear that their town will always be identified with the event. Chief of Police Ted Barnes says it is "unfortunate that now when people think of the name Chowchilla, they think kidnaping."

Livermore repair jobs busy but building slow

LIVERMORE — June was a busy month for home repairs but not for building in Livermore.

Chief Building Inspector Herbert Street reported 134 permits were issued last month for residential additions, repairs or alterations averaging $1,700 per job. Since the beginning of the year, 607 people spent $1.2 million on home improvement - type work in the city.

Six non - residential projects received building similar permits, including Radio Shack, Marlene's ladies wear and Togo's sandwich shop in the Livermore Arcade shopping center. The Church of the Nazarene on Junction Avenue was allowed to build an addition. The six projects were valued at $200,000.

Three sewer connections and 51 enroachments were granted by the department. A total of 144 dwelling units were permitted over the past year.

There were 10 new commercial establishments built, 13 new public buildings and a new professional building allowed since July, 1976, but no new churches have been built in the last two years.

Taste your first natural cigarette.

Taste Real

We've discovered the way to keep natural taste in. Artificial out.

The difference in low tar Real is 'nothing artificial added.' Real's flavor is natural.

All natural.

All other major brands enhance their flavor artificially. Only new Real does not. It doesn't need to.

We've discovered the way to keep natural taste in, artificial out. All the satisfying taste and flavor in Real is natural. That includes Real Menthol, of course. Real's refreshing menthol flavor is fresh, natural. Not synthetic.

Discover the difference yourself. A difference your taste can feel.

Taste Real...smoke natural.

Low tar. Nothing artificial added.

Warning: The Surgeon General Has Determined That Cigarette Smoking Is Dangerous to Your Health.

9 mg. "tar", 0.8 mg. nicotine av. per cigarette by FTC method.
